Rush Liquor From Canada For Christmas

RUMRUNNERS READY TO UNLOAD

Final Cleanup Before New Treaty Signed Planned By Ship Owners

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 28.—With at least three Vancouver liquor-laden ships lying off United States Pacific ports and one due to load here this week-end for the Christmas cheer trade, exporters defying United States prohibition laws are making a final clean-up before their business can be stopped by the provisions of a new treaty now being proposed in Washington and to which Canada will be asked to subscribe.

Tremendous excitement has been aroused in the close-drawn ranks of the rum trade here by the report that the big move behind the California liquor exposures is the final crushing of the smuggling game.

Fear Game Is Up

"Exporters who have made fortunes here fear the game is up," said a legal man in close touch with their operations, today. "They are now trying to get as much as possible in a grand rally before the lid is clamped on."

No fear of fast boats, long guns and improvement affect the exporters nor the men they employ to risk their lives in the battle with bluejacket patrols and night-working hijackers.

Boast of Ability

"Let the Americans do what they will to put a guard around the Pacific shore and we will get cargoes in just the same," is the boast of one chief blockade runner.

"But if Canada takes a hand to stop us it is a different thing and that is what it looks like. We don't say that the enforced call at South American ports would deal us a death blow, but no doubt there will be other regulations that will take all the profit out of the game."

England on Outs With Russia Over Treaties

LONDON, Nov. 28.—England's action in repudiating commercial treaties with Russia because of the Zinoviev letters, has placed the relations of the two countries on a precarious basis, said one of the two notes handed to the British government this evening by Rakovsky, the soviet charge d'affaires. Again Russia told England the Zinoviev communication was a forgery.

GARBUTT TO HANG

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—Harry Garbutt, former Illinois convict, was sentenced to hang here today for the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Lee Hunn, wealthy Pasadena welfare worker and wife of a Chicago ink manufacturer. Garbutt's attorneys filed notice of appeal.

Bootleggers' Blue Book Will Contain Names and Prints

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—A "who's who" in the world of bootlegging is being complied. All of the "400" and probably a few more in bootlegdom will be listed with pictures where available, finger prints if they can be had and many other intimate details.

The book will not be published that all may see. It is for the private information of Uncle Sam's rum sleuths, who will be expected to know its contents from cover to cover.

"Booze who" has been suggested to Prohibition Director Samuel Rutter as an appropriate title for the new volume.

REPUTATION MAY SECURE FREEDOM

Truthfulness of Convicted Man Stressed In Plea For His Pardon

By L. C. OWEN

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—"Truth is the gate of justice," so one of our ancient philosophers tells us. The reputation for truthfulness established through two decades of political power by "Pete" McDonough, deposed San Francisco underworld king, bail bond broker and alleged bootlegger, may be the means of bringing to him that justice of which he contends he long has been denied.

McDonough was convicted here almost a year and a half ago for alleged bootlegging, and was sentenced to one year in jail. His case now is before President Coolidge. The nation's chief executive has been asked to invalidate the punishment which hangs over McDonough's head by extending to him a presidential pardon. Behind the pardon plea is probably the most remarkable document that a head of the nation ever was called upon to consider.

It is an attestation by hundreds of leading men of a great community to the man's lifelong record for truthfulness and a declaration by those who have signed it to their belief that McDoncugh not only is guiltless of the offense of which he was convicted but that he was convicted upon "framed up" evidence.

Appended to the document, which is in the form of a petition to the president, are the names of Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, several judges of the superior court here, of jurists from other higher state benches, of many of the city's most prominent business men and bankers and of scores of "just plain citizens."

For more than twenty years McDonough has been one of San Francisco's most colorful figures. As czar of the old Barbary Coast section he not only carried thousands of underworld votes in his vest pocket, but likewise always received credit for all that was

COUNCIL ACT REGULATES BARBERS

Ordinance Passed Obliging Tonsorial Artists to Get Health Permit

The barber ordinance was passed this morning by the city council. Five Glendale barbers had come to protest the measure but they went out smiling. They had been told by Mayor Spencer Robinson that if the ordinance proves to work a hardship on the men, it will be repealed.

The motion to pass this ordinance was made by Councilman Asa Hall and seconded by Councilman S. S. Gilhuly. The vote was unanimous.

The ordinance provides for the regulation of barbers and barber shops within the city limits. It requires all barbers to have certificate of health, issued by the city health officer, Dr. G. Kaemmerling. These certificates are to be issued only after applicants have successfully passed a physical examination. The ordinance also provides that licenses to operate barber shops must be obtained from the city clerk, A. J. Van Wie, by the payment of $2 each. A fine of $300 or six months in jail or both is the penalty provided for violation of any provision of the ordinance.

Effective Thirty Days

This ordinance will become effective thirty days from today.

David W. Goodfellow, a Glendale barber, declared himself against the ordinance because it would have a tendency to make it difficult to get barbers to work in Glendale. This was refuted by Dr. Kaemmerling, with the argument that it would bring a better class of barbers to Glendale.

The councilmen questioned the barbers as follows:

Councilman Gilhuly: "Do you object to the pure food ordinance?"

Mr. Goodfellow: "No because that concerns something that goes into your mouth."

Councilman Gilhuly: "Well, barbers work around my mouth."

Dr. Kaemmerling: "There is more danger of infection through the skin than by the mouth. There are three barber shops in Glen-

Louise Street Site Selected For New Y.M.C.A. Building

Purchase of a site 150 feet fronting on the east side of Louise street, 50 feet south of Wilson avenue, for Glendale's $275,000 Y. M. C. A. building, was announced today by George D. McDill, president of the board of directors. The property was formerly owned by Miss Mary E. Chester, old time Glendale resident, who turned it over to the association at a very reasonable figure, Mr. McDill said, although no announcement of the purchase price was made.

Decision on the Louise street site was unanimous when it was placed before the board, Mr. McDill added. It was chosen because of the central location and because the price was right, he declared. The property runs back a distance of 150 feet and will be considerably larger than is necessary for the new building. It was chosen after options had been held on a large number of sites in different parts of the city and all had been closely investigated by the board of directors.

In announcing the purchase, Mr. McDill made the following statement:

"After a thorough consideration of the various interests involved, and holding in mind the needs and conveniences of the constituency of boys and young men to be served, the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian association of Glendale has voted unanimously on a site on the east side of Louise street between Broadway and Wilson avenue, as the location for Glendale's new $275,000 Y. M. C. A. building.

CHINA'S FINANCES WORRYING JAPAN

Ratification of Nine-Power Treaty by France Is Orient's Objective

TOKIO, Nov. 28.—Japan believes France's ratification of the nine-power treaty is the most essential factor now towards providing a settlement of the Chinese question, according to one of the best informed government officials.

In this connection, it was pointed out today that this treaty which was drawn at the time of the Washington arms conference provides the machinery necessary for solving China's problems. The treaty also offers the opportunity to the signatory powers for cooperating with China in stabilizing and bringing about unity within the nation.

In the event that France continues to delay ratification of the nine-power treaty the suggestion has been advanced here that a four-power consortium to include the United States, Japan, England and France would be capable of drafting a plan for stabilizing China's finances.

A Dawes plan for China, however, was characterized as an "impractical dream"

English Beauty Is Absolved of Blame In Indian Romance

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Beautiful Mrs. Maude Robinson, whose illicit love affair with the unnamed Indian potentate cost him $750,000 blackmail, was cleared this afternoon in participation in the conspiracy.

After an hour and fifteen minutes deliberation the jury of ten men and two women found the Prince, designated as "Mr. A." for reasons of state, had been victimized but that Mrs. Robinson and her husband, Charles Ernest Robinson, were not involved in the conspiracy.

The case became so technically involved this evening that Lord Justice Darling dismissed the jury and announced that he would decide the verdict himself.

CASUALTIES HEAVY IN EGYPT

Khartoum Hospital Scene of New Fighting Today; Three Doctors Slain

CAIRO, Nov. 28.—All the air and land forces of the British army in Egypt began a demonstration in force today throughout the country as a sequel to a mutiny of two platoons of Sudanese troops which was put down with British guns. Plainly, the free exhibition of armed troops and wrirring airplanes was a warning to the natives to undertake no more such uprisings in protest of British policy resulting from the murder of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian armies and Sudan's governor-general.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Two platoons of the Sudanese troops at Khartoum mutined today, attacked the Khartoum hospital and killed three doctors, one of whom was British. The other two victims of the mutineers were Syrian physicians, according to a Daily Express dispatch from Cairo.

British forces turned their guns on the mutinous troops and quelled the uprising, the dispatch stated.

The mutineers, who have been responsible for recent disorders in the native forces, were of the left wing of the Sudanese. Two other platoons were believed to have been ready to mutiny.

Wreck Hospital

The mutineers wrecked the hospital at Khartoum, but suffered heavy casualties from the British guns.

The foreign office later confirmed the dispatches telling of the mutiny and said official belief was that the outbreak was the result of agitation by Egyptian officers.

The number of native soldiers involved did not exceed fifty, the foreign office said, adding that the situation was well in hand.

Despite the circumstances under which the child was born both the mother and baby were reported today as doing splendidly.

HARLEM LOTTERY FAVORS BANKERS

New York Bank Clearings Used as Basis for Winning Number

By C. G. MARSHALL

Copyright, 1924, by the Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Harlem went back to its galloping dominoes today. Lottery agents, or "bankers" as they style themselves, were open for business at the old stand, but customers for the big drawing next Saturday were scarce.

The big killing set for last Saturday did not come off. It didn't come off because something went wrong with the plot to double-cross the bank but it almost succeeded at that. Too many persons were playing the winning number—or what appeared to be the winning number—for it to be merely a coincidence, and instead of paying off bets Saturday night as usual, the bankers held up payment until Tuesday. In the meantime it developed that 261 was not the winning number at all but 623 were the numerals that brought home the bacon.

So instead of having to pay off a sum estimated at near $300,000 the bankers had to separate themselves from only about $25,000. It was the bankers and not the players who made the killing.

How Drawings Made

The winning number is arrived at by joining certain digits of the New York bank clearings and New York bank balances as posted every Saturday on the bulletin board in the lobby of the New York clearing house association. The figures as printed in four New York evening newspapers last Saturday were: Clearings $926,000,000; bank balances $101,000,000. The second and third digits of the first set of figures joined to the third digit of the second set, provided the lottery number that was accepted as the winning one by all Harlem—except the bankers. It turned out that the correct clearing figures were $962,000,000 and

LA FOLLETTE, BROOKHART AND LADD SNUBBED

Republican Membership Is Set for 'Lame Duck' Session Monday

By W. K. HUTCHINSON

For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The Republican membership of the Senate today completed its organization for the session of Congress opening Monday, electing Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas its floor leader. Curtis succeeds late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana was named assistant leader. A "whip" will be appointed later by Curtis.

The Republicans adopted a resolution barring from future party caucuses Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, defeated independent presidential candidate, and three of his followers—Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, Senator Edwin F. Ladd of North Dakota, and Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota.

It was decided, however, not to remove any of the insurgent senators from their committee assignments in the "lame duck" session of Congress, although the resolution as adopted was interpreted as a rebuke to La Follette and his followers and as a notice of more punishment to follow. The resolution said:

"Resolved, that it is the sense

FRANCE READY TO SETTLE U. S. DEBT

After Lapse of Two Years Negotiations Start to Pay Billions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—After a lapse of more than two years, the French government has actually begun preliminary negotiations looking to an adjustment of her debt to the United States, it was learned officially here today. Jules Jusserand, the retiring French ambassador, who is to relinquish his post here in February, already has had one conference with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the matter, and it is expected that another will be held before M. Jusserand returns to Paris.

The French debt now totals in excess of $4,000,000,000. She originally borrowed $3,340,606,376, and the unpaid and accumulated interest to date approximates $750,000,000. None of this interest has ever been paid.

The settlement offered France was substantially the same as that offered—and accepted—to Great Britain in the discharge of her $5,000,000,000 debt. Next on the list is the Italian debt—now in exceess of $2,000,000,000.

One Hour Parking Plan Into Effect Tomorrow

One hour parking in the business district will go into effect tomorrow, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock at night. This announcement is made by Chief John D. Fraser of the Glendale police department, who defines the section involved as follows: Brand boulevard, between Colorado boulevard and California avenue, and Broadway between Central avenue and Louise street.

Two officers will be placed on duty tomorrow morning, Chief Fraser states, to see that this provision of the city traffic ordinance is obeyed. Enforcement of the ordinance had been allowed to lapse, because of the demand placed upon the police department for officers to guard school crossings. With the new system of school stops in force, two officers are now available for enforcement of parking regulations in the business district.

DIVORCES IN RENO ARE UPHELD

Permanent Residences After Decree Are No Longer Necessary, Is Rule

By L. C. OWEN
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

RENO, Nev., Nov. 28.—Fifty thousand mismated persons who in the past fifteen years have sought refuge in Reno, resided here for the prescribed six months, filed sworn divorce petitions stating they contemplated staying here for the rest of their natural lives, and then—as soon as their decrees had been granted—hastily shook the desert dust of the Sage brush state from their feet, no longer need live in fear trembling. They are not suddenly going to find themselves as much married as ever—some with added bigamous wives or husbands on their hands.

Reno—and all Nevada divorces—are permanent things. Moreover it will be no harder in the future to obtain a Reno divorce than it was fifteen years ago, when Mrs. William Ellis Corey and the late Nat Goodwin started the Nevada divorce vogue.

The momentous question of whether Nevada divorces were to go by the board was determined here last Friday by District Judge George A. Bartlett, when he refused the plea of Mrs. Emma E. Confers to set aside the divorce decree granted Nathan A. Confers, wealthy Hamburg, Pa., merchant, on the grounds that it was obtained through fraud.

In refusing to cancel Mr. Confers' divorce, the court sustained itself and Nevada divorces at the same time. So momentous was the question involved, however, that Judge Bartlett appointed three of the best divorce attorneys in Nevada as "friends of the court" and called upon them to produce all the legal ammunition they could find to prevent the upsetting of decrees already granted.

That Mrs. Confers, a determined little woman seemingly intent on getting a divorce decree for herself and not letting her husband get one, might throw a monkey wrench into the Nevada divorce mill, first loomed as a possibility here two weeks ago, when she filed suit attacking the validity of her husband's divorce on the ground that it was obtained by fraud in that Confers had falsely sworn that he intended to become a permanent resident of Nevada. Confers, she alleged, had no such intention—a fact which was proven, she contended, by the fact that he left for Pennsylvania almost immediately after the decree was granted.

A similar sworn statement of intent appears in the petitions of thousands of previous Nevada divorce actions. Possibly two in every thousand have lived up to their sworn intentions. The others, like Confers, departed immediately they got their decrees.

At the hearing of the Confers case, the "friends of court" finally convinced Judge Bartlett that any person might honestly swear he intended to become a permanent resident of Nevada and five minutes afterward change his mind. And if one person might do that, deliberate fraud in any divorce applicant's mind is not susceptible to legal proof. In celebration of Judge Bartlett's decision, Reno attorneys have issued an "official" statement, saying:

"Those who have obtained Nevada divorces need not worry over their validity. Those who want decrees need not hesitate. Come right on to Reno and we will guarantee that a properly obtained Nevada divorce will have all the old force and effect they have always had. Prices reasonable. Come early and avoid the rush."

Mother's Murder Leaves Estate to Boy In California

CLEARWATER, Kan., Nov. 28.—Somewhere in Southern California Lawrence Elliott and small son are believed to be residing. The boy is heir to his mother's estate here, it was revealed in court yesterday.

Mrs. Elliott, who was divorced from her husband, was the victim of murder recently at Lake-of-the-Woods, Minnesota, near the Canadian border.

The address of Mrs. G. S. Watkins, sister of the slain woman's husband, at Fullerton, is the only clue to the probable heir's whereabouts.

Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, was lame and sickly.

PROVES AIR TRAVEL IS SAFEST

Figures Gathered By Flyers At McCook Field Show Accidents Few

By BERNARD J. LOSH
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

DAYTON, O., Nov. 28.—When anybody mentions anything about the dangers of air travel in the presence of a McCook field officer, that person lays himself open to a neat, verbal chastisement. The McCook field officer will pull out a book and read off a few statistics that go something like this:

U. S. Army aviators flew 9,093,360 miles during 1923 with a loss of but 18 lives—one life for every 605,000 miles. That is nearly 314 times around the world. For each 57,480 miles flown, there was a crash in which no one was injured.

He will produce figures disclosing that all the army officers together flew 75,778 hours during the year and that there were but 158 accidents in which 262 persons figured; he can show that for every 479 flying hours there was one crash, and for each 4209 flying hours there was one fatality.

He will then challenge his interrogator to show by a similar set of figures, any other mode of transportation that will not suffer by comparison.

Facts Long Sought

The table of statistics was prepared by officials of McCook field Where miles are mentioned, they were computed by taking the speed of the slowest air plane in the service, a Dehaviland which has a speed normally of 120 miles an hour.

A table of facts and figures such as has just been compiled has long been sought by aviation enthusiasts. They felt all along they were establishing records of safety in traveling, but could not support such an argument with facts.

A curious feature of the chart discloses that while 262 persons figured in the wrecks, but 18 were killed, although in 68 per cent of the crashes, the airplanes themselves were totally wrecked. In percentages, the chart gives 11.82 per cent injured, 14.11 per cent slightly injured and 70.64 per cent got off scott free.

Determine Cause

Comprehensive reports of every airplane accident are sent in to McCook field. These are painstakingly scrutinized and something has been learned from each crash. Thus, they have accounted for the cause or causes of all but 1.27 per cent of the crashes.

They know at McCook field that most of the accidents are due to mechanical trouble and that ranking next as a cause is faulty pilotage. Some have been due to structural weakness, others to faulty landing fields and some to adverse weather conditions.

Aernautical experts at the Dayton flying field say that the percentage of miles flown during the current year will be greatly in excess of the former year and that the number of accidents and fatalities will be considerably reduced. All of which, they claim, is proof in dubitable that the airplane is the safest mode of travel yet devised by man.

LEGION NOTES

Sixty thousand members of the American Legion in California before next fall is the goal set by the officers of the organization, according to plans announced by State Commander Nathan F. Coombs.

"Every member get a member in December" is the Legion's slogan for next month. The California campaign to double the present enrollment in the organization is a part of the plan of the national commander, James A. Drain, to have a membership of 1,000,000 in the legion by the end of his term as organization head next year.

Bringing word that four of the national officers in the American Legion will visit California during the next few months, State Adjutant James K. Fisk has returned to his official duties in San Francisco from the annual adjutants' conference of the organization held last week in Indianapolis.

The legionnaires who will come to California are: National Commander James A. Drain, Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, president of the Women's auxiliary of the legion; Father Joseph Lonergan, national chaplain, and Garland W. Powell, director of the Americanism commission of the organization.

State Commander Nathan F. Coombs of the California department of the American Legion, has received word that the next national convention of the organization scheduled for Omaha, Neb., is to be held October 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 next year.

On January 1, 1925, the United States Veterans' bureau will release through the mails approximately 1,000,000 federal adjusted compensation certificates or insurance policies to World war veterans, according to State Commander Coombs of the American Legion.

Next March the cash payments to veterans whose compensation is $50 or less and the first installment to dependents of ex-service men are to be distributed.

Approximately 1,500,000 veterans have submitted applications of which all but 50,000 have been examined and either acted upon or returned by the bureau for correction, according to American Legion headquarters. Of the 1,500,000 applications gone over up to date, about 300,000 have been found incomplete, principally because veterans either forgot to sign their names or to include their fingerprints, which is required on all applications.

The American Legion is cooperating with the American Red Cross in the annual Red Cross drive to raise funds for soldier and other relief, State Adjutant James K. Fisk of the California department announced in his call for the help of the posts throughout the state in the campaign to aid the Red Cross.

Short Circuit Sets Automobile on Fire

A short circuit caused the automobile of Robert W. Sullivan to burst into flames at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while it was parked in front of 213 North Brand boulevard. Someone turned in a fire alarm but the wires were disconnected and the blaze extinguished before apparatus from station No. 1 arrived. The damage was small.

Brother Gets Ticket To Speeders' Court

The chase was hot but Motor Officer W. O. Hutton was gaining. Soon he would present the driver of the car ahead with one of those well known little yellow invitations to call on Judge Frank H. Lowe of the Glendale police court. He started on the last spurt that was to bring him alongside the speeding car in the most approved manner—when to his chagrin he saw the driver swing his machine into a vacant lot at East Colorado boulevard and Everett street, saw him and another man evacuate at a rapid rate of speed.

The sequel or "second" act of this little drama occurred an hour later on the same afternoon, which was yesterday when a man introducing himself as James McGrath of Los Angeles appeared at the garage where the "abandoned" car had been taken, said he was the brother of John A. McGrath, the driver, and wanted to know if he could have the car. "Yes, if you'll allow me to present you this in return," said Officer Hutton, suddenly appearing and handing him the little yellow invitation.

The final act of the drama was set for 2 o'clock this afternoon, in Judge Lowe's court, when the brothers McGrath were special guests.

Texas Grain Receipts Double Market Of 1923

FT. WORTH, Nov. 27.—Grain receipts in the last week on this market are more than double those of the corresponding period of 1923. Nearly 650 cars arrived here as against 294 cars last year. The principal increases have been in shipments of milo and kaffir corn, while wheat consignments are falling off. Much surplus farm labor has been thrown on the market throughout this state because of the ending of the cotton and grain harvesting seasons. Texas now is doing a tremendous amount of road building, paving and municipal building and unemployed will find work in those activities.

STONE EXPLAINS S. F. ROAD WORK

Opening and Widening of Boulevard Doesn't Include Paving of Road

Property owners who have been writing letters to Virgil B. Stone, city manager, protesting against the paving of San Fernando road, are advised by Mr. Stone that no such proceedings are under way.

There are under way on this road, at the present time, opening and widening proceedings, which he advises should not be confused with paving proceedings. A hearing on these proceedings has been set for December 2, at 10 o'clock in the morning, when protestants will have the privilege of appearing before the City Council and making known their feelings in the matter.

Those whose property does not front on San Fernando road will be assessed only for the benefits they may be expected to derive from such opening and widening, according to Mr. Stone, who urges that property owners do not write him further letters but wait until the date set for the hearing and make their protests direct to the council.

Quick Results From Ad In Newspaper

Copies of the Christian Science Monitor of November 21, carrying a quarter page advertisement on Glendale, have just been received in this city. The ad is one of a series being run by the Chamber of Commerce in nationally circulated publications. It is four columns by eighteen inches in size and is handsomely illustrated. According to Secretary Howard I. Wood of the chamber, a number of inquiries as a result of the ad beat the "marked copies" of the Monitor to the Glendale Chamber of Commerce offices.

Glendale Voices Its Thanks In Services Of United Churches

Great throngs of people gathered at the Glendale Presbyterian church yesterday morning to join in the Thanksgiving day union services and hear the inspiring sermon by Rev. Ernest E. Ford of the First Baptist church, on the spiritual significance of the day. Services opened with an organ prelude, after which Rev. J. F. Winnard of the Tropico Presbyterian church offered the invocation. The scripture reading was by Rev. C. M. Calderwood of the First Congregational church.

After a selection by the Harmony quartet, the president's proclamation was read by Rev. H. C. Mullen, of the Pacific Avenue Methodist church. Rev. Lincoln A. Ferris of the First Methodist church then led the assemblage in prayer.

Sermon by Rev. Ford

There followed a hymn, then the offering, with a statement by Rev. C. A. Cole of the Central Christian church. Then, after another selection by the Harmony quartet, came the sermon by Rev. Ernest E. Ford. The services ended with the doxology and the benediction, pronounced by Rev. M. M. Johnson of the Broadway Methodist church.

A synopsis of Rev. Ford's sermon follows:

"The 100th Psalm is one of thanksgiving. "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness; come before His presence with singing. Know ye that the Lord He is God; it is He that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are His people, and the sheep of His pasture. Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise; be thankful unto Him, and bless His name. For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations.'

Voices Noble Praise

"It seems very fitting that we in Glendale meet together in this beautiful church to 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow.' We are glad for the call of our president to all the people of our fair land to assemble in the churches to render thanks to Almighty God for His continued blessing to us as a nation.

"Thanksgiving and praise always go together. Each one is the response of the harp cords

Highway Committee Expected to Favor Increased Gas Tax

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 28.—The California Highway committee, appointed by the last legislature for framing a new finance program, has been summoned into final session by Chairman Arthur H. Breed, senator from Piedmont, according to Secretary W. F. Mixon. The local meeting next week will determine what methods will be taken to raise revenue for roads.

It is hinted that members of the committee are opposed to a bond issue, and there is a general impression that the legislature will be advised against such a measure. George Radcliff, chairman of the state board of control, is credited with the statement that 95 per cent of the officials and organizations interviewed are in favor of increased gasoline tax and license fees.

DRIVE FOR EARLY MAILING STARTED

Postmaster Jackson Urges Public to Co-operate During Holidays

"The Shop Early, Mail Early campaign inaugurated by the postoffice department last year proved to be an unqualified success in Glendale. It was of great benefit to the people and also enabled postoffice employes to deliver all the Christmas mail before noon on December 25. The department again this year asks the hearty co-operation of the public, in order that the record made last year may be equalled, if not excelled," Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson said today.

"When you shop early and mail early you are helping the clerks in the postoffice to eat their dinners at home, and you are greatly benefiting yourselves. You have a greater chance to secure a better selection of gifts from the stores, you have more time to wrap them securely, and you are sure that they will arrive at their destination in time to be opened Christmas morning. You are also relieving the burdens on the clerks behind the counters in the stores, and you are giving a practical demonstration of the good will that Christmas time signifies. We urge that the public refrain from using small envelopes in sending Christmas cards, as this very greatly retards the sorting and distribution of the mails.

"Let all of us pull together this year, do our shopping early and do our mailing early. Let's make it a genuine old-fashioned Christmas celebration."

Legislators Will Meet Civic Representatives

SEEING BEYOND TODAY

Glendale merchants are generally far-seeing men. Look over the stores in the retail districts in the various sections of Glendale and you will note that everywhere is great activity and an air of prosperity. You will understand at once that they are not one-horse concerns, nor are they managed by men who cannot see beyond today.

To be successful in business, except in a very small way, demands the ability to co-ordinate and harmonize many different phases of work. It means a looking forward beyond the present. It means co-operation with others in any work that is for the good of the city, for it is impossible for business to flourish in a stagnant community.

Nearly every city is cursed with a few business men of small calibre who come into the community with no thought of helping to build it up or to develop their own business beyond a certain point. They are not looking to the future. Their aim is to get what they can from the people in a few months or a few years and then move on to some other field.

Glendale is singularly free from this class of merchants. We have very few business men who are not intensely interested in Glendale. They have come here to stay because Glendale is a good place to live, and they want to see the city prosper. They are men who will give their help to any enterprise which they think will result beneficially for the city. In this they may be a bit selfish, for they are men who can see beyond today and they know that whatever boosts the community will eventually benefit their own business. They do not expect direct results, but they have the ability to see beyond today and they know that the time will come when their efforts will be rewarded.

One of the most valuable qualities one can possess is that of faith, and it is necessary in business as well as in religion. The man who cannot believe anything he doesn't see is not cut out to make much of a stir in the business world. Take the matter of advertising—in a newspaper or any other medium. It is no longer necessary to try to prove that advertising pays; that is admitted by the most unprogressive of merchants. But it is a good test of the calibre of a business man to find out whether or not he can see beyond today's advertisement. Of course a man expects direct results if he is advertising a certain article at a cut price for a certain period of time, but the bulk of the advertising that is done today is a building up, a cumulative process, and most merchants regard it as such, knowing that the results for today's ad will not be apparent tomorrow, perhaps, but that the constant dropping of water will wear away a stone, and that their co-operation in every form of community enterprise will eventually have its effect.

The merchants of Glendale are progressive and forward-looking. They are the kind of men who can see beyond today's advertisement.

DEEDS AND MOTIVES

La Rochefoucauld believed that no man deserved to be praised for his goodness unless he had strength of character to be wicked. "All other goodness," he said, "is generally nothing but indolence or impotence of will."

We must believe that when the books of our lives are balanced there will be found other entries besides mere statements of good deeds or evil deeds done. We all know people who are good because they are too lazy to be bad; we know of those who would steal if they were sure not to be found out. It cannot be conceived that a just judge who knows our inmost thoughts will ignore the impulses that led us to do evil or to refrain from evil.

Men and women have stolen food to give to their hungry children. Other men and women have led entirely blameless lives. But what they would do should they see their children in want or hunger or experience temptation in any other form, we do not know.

There is the man who has led an exemplary life, but he has an undying hatred for another. He would like to see his enemy destroyed, but he has not the courage to take life or to face the danger of exposure. Does he deserve much credit for refraining from murder?

A man who covets something his neighbor owns, who would not be too indolent to break into his neighbor's house at night and take what he desires, who feels no fear of being found out and yet who refrains because it is written, "Thou shalt not steal," is about the only man who deserves very much credit for not stealing. If I do not lie simply because I do not have the gumption to make up a good story or because I fear exposure, I deserve no credit for being truthful.

A certain boy was thrust out of his home to make his own way early in life. He fell among evil associates and learned to steal and break other laws. Another boy about the same age was shielded and sheltered from every form of care and deprivation. He was good but lazy. He had no desire to do wrong and he was never tempted to do wrong. The lives of these two boys after they grew up crossed in a curious way and were strangely contrasted. There was no doubt in the minds of the public that the first boy was a menace to society, the other a splendid citizen, and in a way the public was right. But surely motives and circumstances will be taken into consideration when these two men are judged at last.

This seems to be an age when a man who invents an adjustable engagement ring is sure of a fortune.

There was a time a girl married for better or worse. Now she marries for more or less.

Why is it that barbers insist upon using a bald-headed man's dome as an experiment station?

THE GOLDEN FLEECE

The Minute Swallows the Year

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A minute's carelessness may wreck a life of carefulness. A minute's failure sometimes overthrows years of success.

In the same way a minute's crisis may bring the opportunity for success and a man may labor for a long while only to find his labors banked up suddenly at a critical moment.

Genius is a matter of fifteen minutes, said a French philosopher, but behind that fifteen minutes there is often accrued the toil of a lifetime.

No man knows what a day may bring forth, but it is safe to say that the day contains no other things than the accumulated results of a man's own efforts.

We may go along for years and seem to be accomplishing nothing, but we are storing up energy against some critical hour, some hour when all our faculties shall be put to the test.

It is wrong to say that this critical time is merely a matter of luck. Opportunity may have much to do with success, but not everything, for opportunity is constantly coming to men who are not prepared for it. There are too many men in the condition of the Irishman who said that when Opportunity knocked at his door he was out.

In fact, opportunity is nothing but another way of saying that the chance comes to the proper man. It is nothing but the break in the dam of one who has succeeded in piling up all his resources behind him. If the dam breaks and there is no water to go over it will not make much difference, but if behind it there is the accumulated resources of the years, something is going to happen.

One actor worked faithfully for fifteen years, and then he stamped eighteen minutes upon the stage and was called a genius.

It is wrong to think that the hours of preparation, although they may be quiet and uneventful, have nothing to do with the hour of success. They have everything to do with it. But the question is that of being prepared when the time comes, and of not being called and found wanting.

Who's Who

Great Britain's new secretary of state in charge of Britain's foreign affairs Austen Chamberlain seems pre-eminently fitted for the post. He is rated as one of the empire's leading diplomats, and he comes rightfully by his ability. He was "raised" in the atmosphere of the state councils.

Chamberlain's father, Joseph, a successful manufacturer of Birmingham, Eng., was recognized as a master mind in the development of domestic and colonial policies of the empire by the time young Austen finished his schooling.

Joseph Chamberlain was then, in 1884, as president of the board of trade this is to say, minister of commerce in the American sense—one of the dominant figures of the Gladstone cabinet and was recognized abroad as the coming man in England. His son was therefore welcomed with particular cordiality by the leading public men in France, in Germany, in Italy and in the dual empire. Having made a careful study of their languages, his intercourse with them presented no obstacles, and in a number of instances, notably in the case of the first Prince Bismarck, he was admitted to an extraordinary degree of intimacy.

Born in 1863 Chamberlain was educated at Rugby, Trinity college and Cambridge.

From 1895 to 1900 he was civil lord of the admiralty. Later he held the post of financial secretary to the treasury from which office he went to that of postmaster-general. The duties of chancellor of the exchequer and member of parliament were next to devolve upon him.

Immediately prior to the world war Chamberlain was chairman of of the royal commission on Indian finance and currency and from 1915 to 1917 he was secretary of state for India from which office he resigned to become a member of the war cabinet.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

THIS IS WONDER AGE

Progress is inexorable. In the same newspaper we read that geographers, traveling comfortably in automobiles mounted on caterpillar tractors, are charting the Sahara desert, the great unknown, for the first time; that we may now talk across the Atlantic by radio telephone; that quicksilver may be transformed into gold—unprofitably at present, however; that chemists are saying that they expect to bring the human body under their control in the future.

And as to the latter, let us believe with them. Nothing is more wonderful than the strides made in the last few years by chemistry. No one can imaine the new marvels practitioners of this science will accomplish. Remember that from a prosaic lump of coal chemists now extract dyes that kings would have fought for in olden times, flavoring extracts, medicines, explosives.

Do not fear that we shall ever lack the necessities of life. The chemists will give them to us when nature fails.

With each step onward, the world becomes more "materialistic," to use a popular phrase. The inexplicable is explained. A few more of humanity's one million and one fears vanish.

There are enormous numbers of persons to whom the material world is altogether contemptible: who can see nothing in a handful of garden soil, or a rusty nail, but types of the passive and the corruptible.

To modern science the handful of soil is a factory thronged with swarms of busy workers; the rusty nail is an aggregation of millions of particles, moving with inconceivable velocity in a dance of infinite complexity yet perfect measure; harmonic with like performances throughout the solar system.

Huxley says that if there is good ground for any conclusion, there is such for the belief that the substance of these particles has existed and will exist, that the energy which stirs them has persisted, and will persist, without assignable limit, either in the past of the future.

Surely, as Heraclitus said of the kitchen with its pots and pans, "Here also are the gods."

"Little as we have, even yet, learned of the material universe, that little makes for the belief that it is a system of unbroken order and perfect symmetry, of which the form incessantly changes, while the substance and energy are imperishable." That is Huxley's conclusion.

Today's Poem

THE RAINBOW

Rainbows are lovely things;
The bird that shakes a cold, wet wing,
Chatters with ecstasy,
But has no breath to sing;
No wonder, when the air
Has a double rainbow there!

Look, there's a rainbow now!
See how that lovely rainbow throws
Her jewelled arm around
This world, when the rain goes!
And how I wish the rain
Would come again, and again!

TALK WITH YOUR EYES IN MOVIES!

That's Advice Carmel Myers Gets From Her Director; Other Film News

By MARIAN MARSHALL
For Southland News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 28.—What is new about the picture industry? Carmel Myers, who has just completed her first picture in Germany, contributes the following thought:

Gesticulation is a rarity in modern German films, though impression formed by American audiences viewing them are distinctly to the contrary. Now the eyes, "mirrors of the soul," are depended upon to truly express the drama as Dr. Ludwig Wolff, director of "Garragon" in Berlin demonstrated to Miss Myers, who adds:

"To my delight the first thing Dr. Wolff said, was: 'Don't use your hands; get the idea over with your face. As we rehearsed, he cautioned: 'No frown, please. Make your eyes tell the whole story of the plot'."

Movie Problems

Turning now to other viewpoints, a British editor has asked "When and how are we going to get greater movies," it being a common criticism in the empire that Hollywood's product is factory made.

Frank Lloyd, who turned the tide of production from "sex to sea," as this writer has already revealed a week ago, endeavors to make answer in a lengthy explanation. As director of "The Sea Hawk," "Judgment" and other current successes, his word is worthy of consideration.

"Frankly, there will be no 'greater pictures' until the public is willing to forget just motion picture titles, motion picture stars, elaboration and spectacle," decrees Director Lloyd.

The truth of his statement has been apparent. From office boys and girls, just ordinary people, if you please, the late Thomas H. Ince, among others such as David Wark Griffith, Phil Rosen for the Rockett brothers, and George Melford, moulded masterpieces. Explaining this Mr. Lloyd continues:

Public to Judge

"The 'greater picture' will be that which is so appealing, so artistic and so impressive that it will live a masterpiece in every dimension and from every viewpoint. The 'greater picture,' like the truly great in anything, must be so recognized because of its general merit alone.

"Mere money cannot make the 'greater picture.' Neither can a mere star or group of stars, a mere author nor a mere director. It must be the result of a harmonious composite of all these elements."

After sketching the theory upon which his deductions are based from practical experience, Director Lloyd adds the last thrust which is answer to practically every criticism of the movies as they are made today:

"Until the vast motion picture audience of the world is better acquainted with the real theory of entertainment, particularly motion pictures, the progress of the most intelligent, unselfish and sincere producers can only progress so far—and quite slowly."

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—Patrolman C. A. Anthony has been temporarily suspended pending the outcome of injuries received by Max Facter, 17 year old high school youth, whom it is claimed was shot by the officer in an argument over football tickets at the Coliseum yesterday afternoon. Jimmy Price, aged three, is the victim of a cracked skull, having been run down by an auto while playing in the street.

Here's a marital tangle equal to cross word puzzles which was happily culminated yesterday at the First Presbyterian church. George Williamson married Jean Stewart and his sister, Anna Williamson, married John Williamson in a double wedding attended by 125.

Despite the frowns of "Chuck" Reisner, doughty director of films; the pleas of Attorney Nathan Burhan, and the cries of two excited Japanese servants, Charles Chaplin and his bride were "welcomed" and photographed by newspapermen at Shorb station early yesterday after which they retired to the seclusion of Chaplin's $250,000 Beverly Hills home, the marriage in Mexico having created more furore than had the comedian entertained the world at a ceremony on the Los Angeles courthouse steps.

Federal sleuths are patroling the Southern California coast line for a rum runner laden with 57,000 cases of Scotch whiskeys from Canada; another squad is looking for a million dollar dope shipment, it is reported.

Akron Tire Production Decreases 10 Per Cent

AKRON, Nov. 28.—Tire production in this section continues at about 90,000 casings a day, or 10 per cent less than the rate maintained up to mid October. Purchases of fabric mills in the east by some companies marks another step in their march toward furnishing their own materials.

DEATHS – FUNERALS

MRS. LEO GOODE

Funeral services for Mrs. Leo Goode were held Wednesday and a friend of the family has sent the following obituary to The Glendale Evening News:

"Last Wednesday afternoon, the Little Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park was filled with friends to pay last tribute to Mrs. Leo Goode, nee Josephine Moore. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Norwell of Alhambra, assisted by Rev. Frodsham of Glendale, and Rev. Jennison of Santa Ana. Mrs. Jennison of Santa Ana sang two solos, 'Safe in the Arms of Jesus' and 'No, Not One,' two hymns which were of great comfort to Mrs. Goode during her last days. Miss Viola Yorba of Glendale sang 'Face to Face.'

"Mrs. Goode came to Glendale fourteen years ago with her mother, Mrs. Clara Moore, and sisters, Minnie and Ruth, and brother, Charley. She graduated from Glendale schools and was a favorite among her school friends. In 1914 she married Leo D. Goode. Their union was blest with two beautiful children, Douglas, 9 years of age, and Yvonne, 8 years old. 'Joe,' as we all knew her, was a loving, loyal wife and a wonderful mother, and a true friend to all her acquaintances, never having hard thoughts of any one and always with a sweet smile and pleasant word for everyone. All through her six weeks of intense suffering she had a smile for her husband, children and all who came into her presence. Sunday her pain was relieved through earnest prayer and a clear vision of her Savior, and that night after bidding all her dear ones goodnight she fell into a peaceful sleep and wakened in the great beyond. God bless her! A beautiful lesson was brought to us in the words of comfort and condolence by the pastor and in Josephine's favorite songs. Each petal of the many beautiful floral pieces was a token of love to 'Joe' from her many dear friends."

EDITORIAL

A Community Enterprise

In asking the co-operation of everyone in Glendale in the compilation of the New Year's edition of The Glendale Evening News, the editor deems it wise to make it clear just what he desires this number to be and why he feels free to ask the help of the community.

It has been the custom for a number of years for The Evening News to issue a special edition on New Year's day and because Glendale is so much larger and more important each recurring year it has been necessary to make the edition larger each year in order to make it representative of the city. This year we are eager that the New Year's number may mirror Glendale as it is and so we are determined to make it the biggest and the finest edition of any newspaper ever printed in Glendale, and to do this we must break our own record made when we issued our 1924 fall Development number.

Our object in compiling this edition is that the paper as a whole shall give to persons living in other sections of the country an idea of the magnitude, the desirability, the advantages and the possibilities of Glendale. We want them to see Glendale as clearly as it is possible to have the city shown; we want the representation to be as clear as though these friends of ours in the east and middle west were looking at a moving picture showing every nook and corner of Glendale. We want it to be more clear than that, for we can give, by means of the printed word, details and information that cannot be shown in a picture.

This is purely a community enterprise. Its object is to advertise Glendale, to show up the city in its best and most attractive light, which means that we wish to show it just as it is. And so we feel entirely justified in asking for substantial representation and 100 per cent co-operation in getting out this edition.

To represent the city as it is, it is our desire to show our transportation service and all kinds of public utility service, our postoffice, schools and churches. Every form of business, all the professions and arts and every trade should be represented. Our scenic features, our beautiful drives and all the advantages of our various residential sections and subdivisions should be given. Our industries must be represented and the strength of our financial institutions shown in order to give the world a true picture of Glendale. For all of these things are considered and weighed by people who contemplate changing their place of residence.

To the advertisers in this edition we do not hold out the inducement of direct returns. While 10,000 copies of this edition will go into the homes of Glendale, our New Year's message will not be for the people of Glendale alone. It will be a message from the people of Glendale to their friends and relatives who live in less favored localities, telling them why Glendale is the best city in the world.

We are asking every kind of business, every manner of service and every phase of life and activity in Glendale to be represented in this edition because only in that way can it be made a true and complete reflection of Glendale. We are asking others to co-operate with us in this edition because it is a community enterprise, because we want to show to strangers, not only what we have in the way of attractions and advantages, but that we possess that spirit that induces community growth; the spirit that was shown by the Cizek company a week ago when they took an entire page in The Glendale Evening News, not to advertise their own business, but to tell the people that Glendale merchants were deserving of their patronage; the spirit that puts community welfare first, knowing that other benefits will follow.

We are asking your co-operation in this New Year's edition because community enterprise is the first step toward individual success and because anything that advertises a community must be favorable to individual enterprise.

Trade at Home Drive Started by Merchants

A ten-day trade-at-home campaign is being put on in Glendale by C. R. Fox, this being the fifth day of the drive. Mr. Fox believes the campaign will be for the ultimate good of the whole community. One of the features will be the publication of a booklet giving interesting information The motto of the campaign is embodied in a poem as follows:

Trade at home and never roam,
Seeking bargains everywhere;
I love the town in which I live,
For my interests are there.
There I purchased from my friends—
Need have we for one another—
When I'm short I can approach
My dealer as my brother.
Buying here, with conscience clear,
I put my money down;
I know it stays right here and works
To help build up the town.
That is why I trade at home—
I'm a Booster, thro' and thro';
For a town that's good to live in,
Is good to buy in, too.

Glendale Voices Its Thanks In Services

of the soul to the touch of love. Man is voicing that which is high and noble in him when he says 'Thank you.' It is not a required payment for a favor rendered; but the voluntary response that kindness awakens in the human heart. It is in no sense pay; for the giving of thanks enriches the giver more than the recipient. Poor, indeed, is the man who feels no stirring of gratitude for love bestowed. If the strings of my soul give back no answering note to the stroke of love; if no song seeks expression because of a kindness done; poor beyond words is my little mute life.

"It is quite customary in a Thanksgiving address to catalogue our national assets; but somehow I have felt that there was grave danger of recalling man's greatness, rather than God's goodness. It is hard to keep our heads normal when we begin to recite our national resources and institutions. We are apt to change from a record of our blessings to list of boostings. The Giver is liable to get lost behind the gifts. The giving of thanks to God is not so much for what He gives us, as because of what He is to us.

"God Sent Pilgrims"

"As a nation we have reason to pause for a little while one day in the 365 and say 'Thank you, Heavenly Father.' Not only because of material benefits; of unlimited resources, or a growing commerce of world trade; or because of abundant crops and loaded orchards and vineyards; but also because of what we have inherited from our forefathers who founded our fair land and gave birth to a Thanksgiving day. These men did not happen to come to our New England shores, but were sent of God as much as was Abraham from Ur of the Chaldees to the Land of Promise. I have little patience with the fling we too often hear these days: 'Oh, you are too Puritanical.' Thank God for the Puritans, and for the moral fiber they built into this great republic of ours.

"Thanksgiving day is a time of going back. Memory bridges the canyon of the years, and we live in the yesterdays. The children who have gone from the old home nest, return to gladden fathers and mothers' hearts. They may have left their city home of modern equipment and luxury, and gone back to the country home of their childhood. Mark the gladness on the dear old faces furrowed by the plow of time, because of the children's expressions of appreciation of all their efforts. Oh, yes, mother hasn't as many pieces of silver beside your plate as you are accustomed to, and some of mother's ways of serving are a bit out of date; but, mother's cooking and father's helping are right up to date; because there are some things, and they are the really big things, that don't change with the passing of the years. Let us at this Thanksgiving time go back to the old New England days and learn from the men and women of ye olden times the lessons of honesty, purity and reverence. Let us learn from them how to build, not better houses, but better homes. As we copy them in the holding of this Thanksgiving day, let us seek to learn the secret of their sturdy, oak-like characters.

"Nations are made up of individuals. Each one of us is thankful today for many mercies and blessings of the past year. God is the source of all good. To Him we render thanks and praise for all our blessings. His gifts to each have been manifold. There are three things about a gift that make it of value. First, its cost to the giver; second, its intrinsic value; third, its value to the receiver. 'God so loved that He gave His only begotten Son.' We are most thankful today for that wondrous gift. Love is the basis of all true giving. Grace and gratitude come from the same root word. I remember taking a part of a stick of candy from a very dirty little boy one day, not because I wanted it, but because his love for me prompted the gift, and I took it and said, 'Thank you.' Who do you suppose is most thankful today in all our great cities, the man or woman who has been looking for weeks for work, and last Monday found a job and the boss paid a bit in advance so that the family might have some extras for Thanksgiving, or the man who has had abundance all his life?

"Let us render thanks to Almighty God that He is our Heavenly Father, and has a care for every one of His children. Then let us thank God for all His wondrous gifts to us; realizing that the really big things are not on the market to be bought and sold, but are the unseen things of the heart, which are not measured in things that we have, but in what we are. Then let us be thankful that the Great Giver has asked us to help Him in the distribution of His bounties to those who are less favored than we.

"I am sure God is pleased as He looks down upon the family dinners today, with father and mother and all the children together. And may all of you who meet loved ones and friends today, around the bounties God has bestowed, rejoice and be glad in friendship and love, and do not forget to lift hearts of gratitude to Him who is the giver of all."

CHAPTER XXXI

"Whenever you choose, Gertrude."

"Tomorrow at four o'clock. You will take tea with me here. In the meantime I cannot tell you how much I regret our dinner.

Grant was suddenly conscious of the ridiculous side of the situation. He pulled himself together and turned to the newcomer courteously.

"Perhaps you, as well as your wife, would do me the honor of dining?" he suggested. "Dinner is ordered downstairs. Half-an-hour's delay will be of no consequence."

The Prince bowed coldly.

"I thank you very much, sir," he replied, "but tonight I shall prefer to dine tete-a-tete with my wife. I have affairs to attend to. We shall without doubt meet again."

Grant dined alone in a distant corner of the restaurant, somewhat to his own satisfaction, but very much to the disappointment of the maitre d'hotel to whom he had confided his orders. Just as he was finishing, Gertrude and her husband entered the room. The latter had changed his clothes, but appeared to be in no better humor. He scowled at Grant and ignored his wife, both when he ordered the dinner and the wine. Her eyes continually sought Grant's. On the way out he paused for a moment at their table. She made a little grimace of apprehension, but Grant only smiled.

"You have made a very greedy man of me, Princess," he confessed. "I have had to try and eat the dinner I had ordered for two."

"I wish you'd had sent me my share," she said. "I have not been consulted about our ov.., anyway, and I seem to have heard the name of every dish I detest."

"The marital feast cloys, I am afraid," he sneered.

"I have no doubt but what you are right," Grant assented, with a little bow of farewell. "I'm not married myself, but one seems to discover these things."

"He passed out into the hall and stood for a moment smiling to himself. Then, prompted by a sudden impulse, he opened one of the telephone boxes and rang up the Villa Miranda. In a minute or two Susan came to the telephone.

"What on earth do you want?" she enquired. You ought to be in the middle of dinner."

"I am supplanted," he replied.

"What do you mean? Arthur?" she asked with some excitement.

"Worse! Her husband! The Prince arrived twelve hours before he was expected. It was most awkward."

"So you haven't dined with her?"

"He refused to let me. Gertrude did her best but it was quite useless. He's an insufferable little bounder.

"You would have dined with her, then, if he had not arrived?" she asked, after a moment's pause.

"Naturally."

"Stop a minute," he insisted. "If I came around—"

"Don't come tonight," she interrupted. "Father's going to bed in a few minutes, and I'm going round to the Lancasters They've some friends in to dance."

"Why didn't they ask me?" he grumbled.

"You're supposed to be engaged," she reminded him. "Goodbye."

"Aren't you a little—"

The instrument whirred in his ear. He was disconnected.

"Little cat!" Grant shouted down the instrument. But he was too late. There was no reply.

Grant, who was living on the yacht, had already commenced to undress when the sight of the moon through the porthole window brought him up on deck again. He sank into a basket chair, filled his pipe and sat smoking. The gangway which connected the stern of the yacht to the dock had been pulled in and there was no sound of any movement on board. The Casino was in darkness, but the Sporting Club was still brilliantly illuminated, and here and there on the hillside lights shone out from the villas. A sort of violet curtain of twilight seemed to brood over the place. An automobile with flashing lamps swung around the corner and dashed along the road to Nice. A voiture came down the steep incline towards the harbor. Momentarily curious, Grant watched it. It came along the dockway to within fifty yards of the yacht. Then it stopped. A woman descended and came swiftly along the jetty. The light from an electric standard flashed upon the jewels in her hair as she passed, and Grant sprang suddenly to his feet. He walked hastily towards the stern. The woman had paused, looking at the little chasm of water. She moved out of the shadows and he recognized her.

"Gertrude!" he cried.

"Please put down the gangway," she called out. "I want to come on board."

A sailor on night duty hurried forward. Grant gave a brief order and a gangplank was lowered. It was he, however, who made use of it. He met Gertrude at the shore end and gently led her on one side.

"Gertrude," he told her firmly," it is impossible for you to come aboard at this hour of the night. Tell me what has happened."

She was looking very white and very determined. She put her arm through his and clung to him.

"Grant," she said. "He took me away from you once, and he wasn't altogether honest about it. If you like you can take me back again."

"My dear Gertrude!" he exclaimed.

"I mean it," she went on. "I know everything that is in your mind. I don't care. If I am worth having, take me. Otto has brought it upon himself. I think that I dislike him more than any human being upon the earth.

All the time he was leading her slowly towards the waiting voiture.

"Gertrude," he insisted, "this is not a possibility."

THE GATEWAY

Jack Curtis, who plays Wolverstone, the tough and rough lieutenant for "Captain Blood," in Rafael Sabatini's famous novel of the same name, which will be shown at the Gateway theatre today and tomorrow, gives a few tips on the art of make-up to young girls who are always seeking something new in the line of cosmetics. According to Curtis, he has discovered an absolutely new and original make-up which he is using for the first time in "Captain Blood."

Owing to the convenience of materials and easy method of applying, Mr. Curtis thinks that the method should prove popular with every debutante, especially during the summer season, when a healthy tan is desirable.

The directions are simple and may be tried by any young girl who lives near a sand pile. After applying a liberal coat of flesh paint to the face, go to the nearest sand pile and throw handsful of sand upon the face. The effect is marvelous as well as unique.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"Mamma's Affair," the satirical comedy by Rachel Barton Butler, which is the offering of the Dobinson Players at the Club playhouse, is a different type of play than is usually shown. This play was chosen from more than fifty admitted for the Harvard prize, and has never been shown in stock in Los Angeles, although it played an engagement at the Mason.

Gertrude Kellar, in the title role, gives a remarkable interpretation of a selfish mother who prides herself on her great love for her only daughter. Miss Kellar ranks high in dramatic ability. Joseph McManus, an actor of prominence, both here and in the East, portrays the role of Dr. Jansen, whose candid diagnosis of wealthy neurotics is severe, is a character of perfect interpretation, and his scenes with Eve Orrin hold the audience spellbound. Mary Isabelle Alpaugh as Eve Orrin does the finest dramatic work of her career. Her acting at times was superb, and she deserves much credit for the success of the play. Thyra Ruhland as Mrs. Marchant, the tragic mother of Henry, must be seen to be appreciated. William H. Stephens as Henry Marchant, the well trained son, whose engagement to Eve is a source of pleasure to his mother, does clever work. Laura Winston, a newcomer, portrays the role of Mrs. Bundy, Dr. Jansen's housekeeper. Her work is inimitable and finished. Richard Ehlers as Tommy Hooper, the bell hop, is typical of his part. George Pearce, director, is to be commended.

The musical program provided by the Glendale Trio, under the direction of Gladys H. Lott, is much appreciated.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND TOMMIE'S TRICK

"Come on, Tommie Kat!" barked Jackie Bow Wow one morning to the little pussy boy, the day after Thanksgiving. "Come on, have a game of tag."

"Oh, no!" mewed Tommie, with a funny twist of his tail. "I'm going to do something else."

"What are you going to do?" Jackie wanted to know. "Is it fun?"

"Lots of fun!" laughed Tommie Kat. "I'm going to play a trick on Uncle Wiggily."

"What sort of a trick?" asked Jackie. "Are you going to put salt, instead of sugar in his carrot coffee?"

"No, not zaggazkly that," mewed Tommie, almost choking over the hard word. "But this trick has to do with a carrot. Listen," and he looked around carefully to make sure no one but Jackie heard him. "I am going to make a carrot out of wood, and paint it yellow, just like a real carrot. Then I'll take it to Uncle Wiggily and ask him to eat it. And when he bites on the hard, wooden carrot—won't that be a good trick? Ha! Ha!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Jackie, as Tommie ran away to find a piece of wood out of which to make the carrot. "Ha! Ha!" But the more Jackie thought of it, the more he didn't like Tommie's trick. "Uncle Wiggily was good to me," barked Jackie softly. "He brought me some nice castor oil. I don't like tricks to be played on him."

So while Tommie was using his sharp claws to carve a carrot out of a piece of wood he had found, and while pussy boy was painting his carrot yellow with the juice of some real carrots, Jackie ran over to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" barked the doggie boy, "Tommie Kat is going to play a funny trick on you. He's going to give you a wooden carrot painted yellow and you'll bite on it thinking it's a real one."

Uncle Wiggily winked one eye and then he said:

"Thanks for telling me, Jackie. Now I'll play a trick on Tommie instead of letting him play one on me. You wait here." Uncle Wiggily hopped upstairs and Jackie heard him "pottering around," as Nurse Jane called it. Then pretty soon, the bunny came downstairs with something in his pocket.

After a while over to the hollow stump bungalow came Tommie Kat with the yellow wooden carrot, which looked just like a real one.

"See what I brought you, Uncle Wiggily," mewed the pussy, holding out the trick carrot. "Take a nice, big bite!"

"Oh, thank you, Tommie," laughed the bunny; "I'll nibble your nice carrot in a minute. But here is something I made for you—a snowball. Take it and throw it at Jackie. See if you can hit him."

Uncle Wiggily handed Tommie what seemed to be a ball of snow, but the pussy boy no sooner took it in his paws than he knew it was only a make-believe snowball, made of white paper. He knew it couldn't hurt Jackie to throw it at him, so Tommie tossed it.

But, no sooner did he throw the paper snowball than it opened, for it was hollow, and from the inside dropped a fine lot of candy.

"Oh, what a dandy snowball!" barked Jackie.

"That was a great trick!" mewed Tommie in surprise.

"Well, while you boys are eating that candy I'll eat the carrot Tommie brought me!" said Uncle Wiggily, reaching for the yellow thing.

"No, don't, Uncle Wiggily! Don't," mewed Tommie; "that isn't a real carrot. I made it out of wood to fool you. But now I don't want to play any trick. Don't nibble that carrot!"

And the bunny didn't but he twinkled his pink nose in a funny way. And Tommie never again tried any tricks on his rabbit uncle. But if the postage stamp doesn't slip off and run away, leaving the letter in the mail box all alone, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the horse chestnuts.

METALLIC EMBROIDERY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—No adornment of an evening frock today is more in fashion than metallic embroidery. Usually these embroideries are imposed on black satin dresses of simple lines and extend unbroken from waist line to hem in both front and back. Cut steel embroidery is specially effective.

Diet And Health

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

Within the last three weeks I have given you tables for feeding your babies from the sixth to the fifteenth month. Up to the twelfth month we allowed five meals a day about the hours 6, 10, 2, 6, 10. By the twelfth month the 10 o'clock meal (nursing or bottle) can and should be omitted in most cases. From the twelfth to the fifteenth month four meals a day are taken.

Now, from the fifteenth month you can begin giving three meals a day, allowing lunches of orange or other fruit juices at 9 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. (or milk can be given instead, five to six ounces, at the 3:30 hour).

We have been allowing egg yolks as early as the ninth month, and earlier if the baby is anemic or has rickets. He can begin to have the whole egg now. He has already had egg yolks the first year. When you begin to give him the white of the eggs begin with not more than a teaspoonful and increase the same amount when they are given. As I have told you, some children do not digest egg white easily, and it is one of the proteins that may produce eczema if the child is susceptible. Given in this way it probably won't cause any disturbance. Cook in any way so it is tender. No fried foods for any young child.

TABLE OF FEEDING FROM THE 15TH TO 18TH MONTH
(Calories, 900 to 1200)

BREAKFAST—About 7:30 a. m.
Milk, 8 ounces (no sugar) after, and with the solid foods.
Cereal, one-half cupful or more with some of the milk allowed. Sugar not necessary.
Dry, crisp bread and butter, one-half slice or so, increase gradually.
Egg yolk, two or three times a week or oftener. Begin to add, gradually, the white of the eggs on the days not given at the noon meal.

9 A. M.
Juice of orange and one-half to one glass of water. (If you cannot get orange juice, strained tomato or fresh cabbage or turnip juice will do. Or other fresh fruit juices. Oranges are best.)

DINNER—11:30 to 12.
Meat or vegetable broths, with rice or bread (24 hours old) in it, two or three times a week.
Crisp bread and butter, one-half slice or so.
Scraped beef, one to two tablespoonfuls (level), or cottage cheese, two or three level tablespoonfuls, or nut butter, one-half to one level tablespoonful thinned with milk or water, two or three times a week when meat is not given.
Cleaned bone to bite and suck on two or three times a week.
Strained or pureed vegetables, three or four tablespoonfuls. (Potato and one other, spinach, green string beans, cooked lettuce, carrots).
Spaghetti, macaroni or rice occasionally, instead of potato. (When first molars are in (12 to 16 months) you can chop vegetables and meat instead of straining or scraping. Make him chew.)
Fruit pulp, cooked or raw, two to four level tablespoonfuls.
Milk, four to eight ounces, to drink.

3:30 P. M.—Milk 5 to 6 ounces.

SUPPER—5:30 to 6 p. m.
Milk, eight ounces.
Dry, crisp bread and butter.
Cooked cereal, one-half cupful, some of the above milk in it.
Stewed fruit, two to four tablespoonfuls.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

THE HANDS AGAIN

The other day we were not able to complete the list of manicure necessities. We mentioned only scissors, file, emery boards, orange wood sticks and cream to tint the nails while keeping them soft. You'll need a bleach too for stains that soap and water don't remove. Your druggist will make you a weak solution of oxalic acid, or you can make yourself a good bleach by straining the juice of a lemon through a cloth and keeping it in a little bottle. If you want a whitener to go under the nails (sometimes hard, dirty work stains them so you must whiten them artificially) mix a few drops of ammonia with some laundry starch, and add a few drops of glycerine, using enough starch to make a thick paste. Keep in a tiny pot.

By the way, buy yourself some tiny imitation celluloid pots for creams, polishing powder and such. They needn't be pretty, you can keep them and all your manicure things out of sight in the dressing table drawer, or in a big box. I use an antique mahogany jewel box that belonged to my grandmother, a quaint, decorative piece that sits on a table within reach of the dressing table and conceals within it all such ugly things as files and cotton and bottles of bleach.

The list is complete when you add polishing paste or powder. At first do your nails twice daily—I know it takes time, but it doesn't take much. In the morning, polish vigorously with the powder, wash off with soap, water and a scrubbing brush. Rub a little tinted cream around the edges, push back the cuticle, wipe off the surplus cream and polish with a clean buffer. At night remove stains with the liquid and the paste bleach, polish with the powder, wash it all off, rub in tinted cream, and polish again. First shape the edges with an emery board.

Eva—Lines under the eyes at twenty-two years merely show that you are a bit run down, possibly underweight. Build yourself up again and massage with a nourishing cream.

Marie—If you purchase your rouge at the best shops there will be some one who can advise you about the shade best suited to your needs.

A. R. J., M. B.—Consult a dermatologist about the mole. For the blackheads, use hot wet compresses over them to open the pores after which massage with a cleansing cream to dissolve the soil, remove cream and then close pores with very cold water.

Repeat this cleansing treatment every day. In addition to this, take a daily full warm bath, as this relieves the pores of the complexion through keeping those of the whole body more active.

Babe K.—To make your face fuller, be sure to get plenty of sleep and keep all avenues of elimination acting normally. It will be helpful if you massage every night with a nourishing cream.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

I have just finished knitting myself a new neckscarf. I might call it the Economy Scarf, inasmuch as I knitted it from one ball of two-ply Iceland yarn. I was determined to make its total cost only 65 cents (the cost of a ball).

Now any knitter knows that a scarf of any length, made from one ball of yarn, must necessarily be done on large needles and have plenty of openwork about it! Nevertheless, my scarf is very dainty and is warm enough to wear over my shoulders in the house, even in the coldest weather—in spite of the openwork stitches. It has a decidedly "dressy" look, too.

This is how I made it: I selected from my stock of knitting needles a pair of bone ones, size 6. Taking my ball of tan yarn, I cast on sixty-five stitches. I knit across and back plain, till I had three ribs. Then, on the next row, I knit the first stitch, wound the yarn around the needle three times, knit the second stitch, wound the yarn around my needle three times, knit the third stitch, wound yarn around again three times—and kept on doing this till across, always winding the yarn around the needle between each knit stitch.

When I came back along this row I simply knit the stitches which I had knit before and unwound the yarn from the needle between each of these knitted stitches As you can imagine, the result was a row of long, straight stitches (like a picket fence) a little over an inch in length between the needle and the three ribs of plain knitting with which I began the scarf.

That is all there is to it. After unwinding the yarn between each stitch, as I have just described above, I knit three ribs plain. Then I repeated the process of winding the yarn three times about the needle between each stitch all across a row, and unwinding between each knitted stitch when coming back, then going on to make three more plain-knit ribs.

For a fringe I took the yarn left on the ball and, with a crochet hook, made a chain three inches long, looped this up (putting hook once through the scarf-end to secure it), and repeated, making the short chain and again looping it up—all along the end.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Thanksgiving day was the wedding day of Miss Beryl Augusta Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Drake of 201 South Central avenue, and Raymond James Brewer of Riverside, the ceremony taking place at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, Thursday, November 27, 1924, in the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn Memorial park. Rev. G. Nelson Hobson of Glendale was the officiant. Miss Drake wore a becoming ensemble suit in the wood shade, with hat, gloves and shoes to match. Her corsage was of bride's roses. Attending her was Miss Bernardine Carr of Glendale, who wore an ensemble suit, also in the wood shade. Her flowers were pink sweetpeas. Leonard Olmstead of Los Angeles was best man. Rail Board Gives Its Orders to Utilities

The state railroad commission has authorized the Haines Canyon Water Co., of Tujunga, to issue and sell on or before February 28, 1925, first mortgage bonds bearing 6½ per cent interest, to be known as series B bonds, to the amount of $26,000.

The commission also authorized the Southern Pacific to construct the following tracks at grade: Across Alameda street in Burbank, also across Graham street and Alameda street in two other locations in the same city.

William McEwan has applied to the commission for authority to sell, and Norman McDonald to purchase an auto stage line operating between Burbank and Lankershim, according to a report from Sacramento.

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, Nov. 28.—A zoning ordinance has just been brought to light which prohibits several of what are usually considered desirable businesses in practically the whole of Tujunga and Sunland, according to a map said to have been prepared to define the boundaries of the zone, called "residential district." Violation of the ordinance is punishable by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days.

The ordinance is number 1024 and dated April 7, 1924, according to Marcel X. Dumas, who claims credit for discovering the document while endeavoring to have a similar ordinance passed to protect North Sunset Blvd. district from tuberculosis sanitariums. The origin and passing of the ordinance seems to be somewhat of a rebus to most residents of Tujunga, who claim never to have heard of it, until Mr. Dumas unearthed it in the files.

The document very seriously informs all and sundry that: "No person, firm or corporation shall construct, maintain or operate, or cause to be constructed, maintained or operated in said residential district any brick yard, lumber yard, saw mill, asphalt plant, oil refinery, machine shop, slaughter house, cabinet factory, tile factory, laundry, cannery, rock crusher, gravel elevator, hospital, preventatorium, sanitarium, sanatorium, or motion picture studio."

Garages, lumber yards, the Sunland Ripe Olive Cannery, a cabinet maker's shop, laundries, emergency hospital and a sanitarium operating in Tujunga and Sunland face abatement if the ordinance is taken literally and enforced. Mr. Dumas is quoted as stating: "The nuisances and menaces recited in the ordinance can be abolished by invoking the operation of ordinance number 1024." The distinction between desirable businesses and "nuisances" is apparently left to the option of the complainant, if any. No prayers for abolishment, under the existing zoning ordinance, have as yet been heard in official ears.

The prohibitive zoning ordinance was considered important enough to receive official attention at the last meeting of the Tujunga Valley Realty board, at which it was decided to have the legislative committee investigate the procedure of passing ordinances without general publicity. President Blake stated during the meeting that it is the purpose of the Realty board to remain unattached as far as other organizations are concerned and to cooperate with all and favor none impartially.

Mrs. R. B. Quarles, 361 El Centro street, who was reported to the sheriff's office the first of the week as missing, has returned to her home after wandering in the mountains on a hike and becoming lost. According to reports of officers assigned to the case, Mrs. Quarles left her home in the early afternoon and became lost, wandering about all night and finally finding her way back about 9 o'clock the next morning.

All persons interested in art of any description are invited by the artists of Glendale and Tujunga to attend a dinner at the Tujunga Woman's clubhouse next Saturday evening at 6 o'clock. The Sagebrushers' club of Tujunga will attend and many persons prominent in Glendale art circles are expected.

A petition asking the establishment of a second grade of the grammar school at the Palm avenue street site is being circulated among parents of small children. A first grade is already being maintained there to accommodate small students of the west side of Tujunga, who find the distance to the Pine street school too much of a journey. Mrs. A. F. Massey has been getting the signatures.

Sixty members of the Tujunga Valley Realty board and their ladies recently enjoyed a turkey dinner at the Garden of the Moon. Earl Chapman was host.

During an entire winter in 1872 throngs filled the largest lecture room in London to hear Mark Twain.

Another Beauty Grabbed

M. Ziegfeld of the "Follies" feels that he has just cause for complaint. As rapidly as he discovers, trains, polishes and makes beauties famous they are grabbed by the movies. His latest loss is HELEN LEE WORTHING, who plays with Adolphe Menjou in "The Swan."

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Nov. 28.—The Board of Trustees is in receipt of a communication from Secretary O. J. Renfrew of the Greater San Fernando Valley association, commending the program of street improvement now under way in this city. The letter says in part:

"This association is bending every energy towards ample modern street and highway improvements throughout this region just as it will soon be equally active in helping to bring in increased population and it is gratifying to see Burbank in the forefront in these important activities."

In order to raise funds for entertaining Druids from all parts of California, who will convene in this city next summer, the local grove has printed in pamphlet form two short stories by Professor Michael Quinte, one of its leading members, and is selling the pamphlets. The stories are under the titles "Torino" and "The Twin Neighbors."

Mrs. A. J. Shelly of Gulfport, Miss., is the guest of Miss Ann Williams, a friend in the southern state. Mrs. Shelly is seeing southern California for the first time, but is so pleased with it she says it will not be the last time. Already she has invested in property here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawson of San Diego, guests at a local hotel, will locate in Burbank.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Obuchon of Valley View court entertained recently as guests Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tweed, all of San Fernando, and Mrs. J. B. Pierce of Portland. The latter is a sister of Mrs. Obuchon.

U. L. Music of Cambria drove here recently to visit relatives. Mrs. Music, who has been here visiting with relatives, returned home with him.

The work on the sewer trench along the business section of San Fernando boulevard will be completed within ten days, according to A. J. Rose, city engineer. Merchants who have been suffering loss of business are much relieved to learn this, as they had feared a torn-up street at the Christmas season might cause serious losses.

The big machine moves steadily forward and the pipe laying is only about half a day behind, then comes the filling up of the trench. Mr. Rose states that it would mean a loss of $10,000 to $15,000 to delay the work now, and that as it will be through the business district of the boulevard, and the street back in condition again by the end of next week, the merchants will be able to enjoy their usual holiday business.

A reunion after nearly half a century was the pleasant surprise enjoyed this Thanksgiving day by Abel Dufur of 433 Third street, who has with him his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Emery, of Danville, Ind. Though 90 years of age she made the trip without difficulty, and is much impressed with Southern California.

Mrs. Eleanor Campbell of 549 Verdugo avenue entertained at Thanksgiving day dinner her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Porter, and their two daughters, Eleanor and Miriam Porter, who came here from Bakersfield to spend the day.

Mexican Cabinet Gives Obregon Resignations

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—President Obregon's cabinet presented its resignations yesterday to give a free hand to President-Elect Calles, who will take office on December 1. It appears certain that Dr. Pruig will be made foreign minister and that either Vasconselos Gobernaccen or General Amaro will fill the post of war minister. There is much agitation for the retention in office of Treasurer Pani, because of his familiarity with fiscal affairs and his success in that post.

The year 1923 broke all records in crude oil production.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Nov. 28.—The salvage department of the Los Angeles Children's hospital is making an appeal through Mrs. J. C. Reiter, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce and president of the Eagle Rock P.-T. A., for broken dolls and cast-aside toys which can be repaired and placed on sale for Christmas.

Mrs. Walter Brode, chairman of the doll committee, and assistants, are busily engaged providing dolls with new wigs, hands, feet, or whatever may be necessary. They are also providing the dolls with lovely wardrobes.

Mrs. Rufus Horton, chairman of the toy committee, is busy collecting broken toys and repairing them.

The "Court of Honor" for local Boy Scouts has been postponed to December 4 and will be held at the Congregational church, it is announced by Harvey R. Cheesman, scout executive of the Verdugo Hills District council. A number of speakers will be on the program, bringing before those present the object of the Boy Scout organization as an association built up by the men of America to help the boys of America.

Mrs. Jack Williams was re-recently honored by a delightful surprise party, arranged by her son, Lee V. Wood, and her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Osmunson. Those present were: Leoria Darfey, niece to Mrs. Williams; Tom Cain and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rice. A delicious dinner was served. Mrs. Williams was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Mrs. Beatrice Philips Cole has donated a beautiful water color landscape in a fine frame under glass to the Christmas bazaar and on Tuesday, December 2, at 7:30 at the Methodist annex, at the close of the chicken pie dinner (7:30), the picture will be auctioned and sold to the highest bidder.

The "intelligentsia" of the sophomore and freshman classes at Occidental college have rumored that there is being formed a literary society, consisting of those persons who have literary aspirations. It is to be known as the Manuscript club.

All arrangements have been completed for the big Thanksgiving dance at the Women's Twentieth Century club, Saturday night, November 29, states Mrs. B. F. Hersom. The best of music has been provided and special favors will be given, she states. Mrs. Mary D. Fisk, director of the travel study section of the Women's Twentieth Century club, desires to notify members interested in the department that the regular meeting day is always Tuesday. Last week's meeting continued the fascinating study of China, being both instructive and entertaining. Women who have recently visited the country spoke, and a delightful review of Chinese art was presented. The Philippine islands will now be taken up, to be followed later by a study of India.

Mrs. J. C. Reiter, secretary of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce, calls attention to a poem contest offered by the Redondo Beach chamber, as follows:

First prize, $25; second prize, $15; third prize, $10. This contest is open to all Southern California, under the following rules: 1. Words must be typewritten; 2. Egypt In Uproar as Fighting Continues

The names of the men taken into custody were not revealed by British authorities.

A leader of the student forces, styling themselves "Zaghloul's army," also was arrested after the discovery of the plot to kill Lord Allenby.

Held for Speeches

The British authorities said that four dignitaries and close associates of Allenby and other British and were arrested yesterday, were held responsible for speeches inflaming extremists to the fever of feeling which resulted in the killing of Sir Lee, commander-in-chief of their troops in Egypt. It is possible, according to indications today, that some of those arrested yesterday and today will be implicated directly with the plot against Sir Lee, as well as that believed aimed at the life of Lord Allenby. Three deputies who threatened to resign after the first arrests, withdrew their resignations when they learned that the prisoners had been turned over to the Egyptian authorities.

Many Arrests Ordered

Twelve arrests have been made thus far today, and it is understood that 35 more arrests have been ordered.

A nationalist delegation, including several members of the cabinet, was retired when Premier Zaghloul Pasha resigned, entered a protest against Premier Ziwar Pasha's statements, which they claim savor of fear on the part of the Egyptian people.

The nationalists also insist upon Egypt's rights in the Sudan and charge that the government has no excuse for withdrawing from the Sudan.

England has ignored the Egyptian constitution, they declared.

PERCENTAGES AS LEAGUES FINISH

Only Once In Nationals Did Team End Below .600, But Americans Always

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—In all the years of National league history the championship has never been won but once with a percentage lower than .600. In 1915 Philadelph'a grabbed it from Boston with a percentage of .592. Boston was .546.

This was the year in which Pat Moran managed the Philadelphia team and the fact that he won the first pennant for Philadelphia exalted him so in the opinion of Philadelphia fans that they referred to him as another miracle man in baseball. George Stallings was the first miracle human when he sent his Boston team to the front in 1914 after it had been taking the dust July 4.

The lowest margin actually touched in .600 was by New York and Brooklyn. In 1900 the Brooklyns won the pennant with a percentage of .603 and in 1920 they won with .604, while in 1922 the Giants finished with the same figure. After that .608 is the best which fell to New York, in 1924. Then Brooklyn with .612 in 1916.

In American League

The American league has a record for under .600 competition that makes that of the National take a back seat. In 1908, a year which stirred with a lot of excitement in all major league baseball, the Detroits captured the pennant with .588. Everybody marveled about the closeness of the competition and Hughe Jennings shed a flock of freckles trying to worry along with his troubles. The Clevelands were the runners up and their figures were .584.

The next best was the Boston figure of .591 in 1916 and after that came Boston again with .595 in 1918. Of course the season terminated abruptly in 1918 because of the "work or fight" order, but the Bostons had to play ball all of the time to keep the lead they started with. The Giants in the National league who were thought to be probable winners, lost their lead that year after they had run like wild fire, because some of the players got so fussed up over the war.

The next best figure in the American league was that of Washington this year with .597. New York was second with .586, which was exhibit B in the American league, so far as closeness of competition is to be taken into consideration.

When Owners Try

There is no such thing in baseball as a board of handicappers who sit down and attempt to distribute players so that the race for the pennant shall be close and exciting. The handicappers are the managers and the owners and usually they manage to handicap themselves as well as the players. When owners butt in where managers fear to tread there is always trouble. The moment a club owner feels that he knows all about his baseball club he is pretty sure to be headed for the tail end of the league.

The unconscious handicapping of the American league race by its managers, assisted by its owners, is one of the rare things of baseball that cannot be explained but it has given the American league partisans a chance to crow time and again as to the relative value of the two competitions. The American league fans not only say that they have better and closer races but they reason from that closeness of finish that they have better ball players.

The Giants won their championship in 1924 with .608. That is one of the low figures of the National league's history. They played against Washington, a .597 team, and lost to them in a series of seven games. That is one of the landmarks of history now. The American league fans insist that it is only added proof to their statements that the American league is collectively the stronger of the two because the team which won its league championship with the greater percentage was defeated by the team which won with a lesser percentage. Off hand there might not appear to much to that except the fact that the American league has the better of the contention because it captured the world series.

Better Balance

Keen observers of baseball think the lower winning percentages in the American league are due to a better balanced array of teams. The outfields and the infields of the American are rather uniform on the part of six clubs and there is no predominance in pitchers and catchers. In the National league the custom has been to center strength in two or three clubs while the other teams are only auxiliary to the race and that argument is well borne out by the fact that in the National league there have been winning percentages repeatedly of almost .700 and some of more than .700, while the highest in the history of the American league is that of Boston in 1912 with .691. That year the Giants won their championship with .682 and then lost to Boston in the first series of eight games ever played in a world's series.

The average championship for the last ten years in the American league has been won at .560. In the National league it has been .623. Anyone who wishes to argue over the relative closeness of races in the American league and the National league is welcome to those figures and the chances are good that the American league may be as closely handicapped in 1925 as it was in 1924.

Penn's Southpaws And Hoofs

One reason for the phenomenal success of Pennsylvania's grid team this fall might well be attributed to the fact that the opposition has spent the first half of every game figuring out what is wrong with the Penn backfield.

The main reasons for their dilemma are these:

All four men of the backfield throw forward passes lefthanded.

Two of the men—and the men who do most of the booting—kick the ball with their left foot.

Capt. Rea McGraw, halfback, star defense man, and the main forward passer, is lefthanded. So are Albert Kruez, the plunging fullback; Joe Laird, quarterback, and Paster Fields, the other half.

Kruez and Field kick the ball with the "near" foot.

What's a poor wing or backfield man on the opposition going to do when on every play he sees a Penn man running around the field with the ball poised in the wrong hand, waiting to heave it with a Rube Waddell slant, to a receiver? There's notihng in "How to Play Football" covering that emergency. As a result he is caught flatfooted.

The advantage of the southpaw kicker is plain. Repeatedly Kruez and Field get their kicks—drops or punts—away with unexpected speed, as far as the opposition is concerned. They start with what is, apparently, the wrong foot. Then, to the amazement of the uninitiated, let drive with the "wrong" foot.

In addition to being a great asset in the Penn offense the presence of the four southpaws and two leftfooters gives the scribes covering the games many premature gray hairs.

Coach Young's men defeated Lafayette on a touchdown resulting from a forward pass. It was many minutes after the game before the newspapermen verified their beliefs as to who started the pass.

When the ball was hurled McGraw, Kruez and Field were in the play. All three were close together when the ball was heaved. McGraw and Kruez had been starting most of the passes that day, so the scribes credited one or the other with the pass. It turned out that Field had hurled it.

Pennsylvania stands out as one of the two undefeated teams in the east. Rutgers is the other. But the Penn team is the only one to escape a tie. Lehigh and Rutgers played a 13-to-13 deadlock.

Rutgers, however, trounced Lafayette 43 to 7. Pennsylvania, previously, had barely escaped defeat, winning against Lafayette 6 to 3, due to the forward pass mentioned above.

ILLINOIS APPLE CROP

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 28.—The Illinois apple crop this year totaled 5,490,000 bushels as compared with 7,370,000 bushels last year and was only 54 per cent of normal.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Broadly speaking, the football season of 1924, both east and west, has developed a better defensive game than that of 1923. This manifests itself in spots in the scores of teams that were fairly well matched.

In the early games of the season, when the elevens of the larger institutions meet those of the smaller, it is not expected that the naturally weaker eleven will make a great resistance against the naturally stronger. Top heavy scores are the rule. But this year there have been unusually good fights made even by the weaker teams.

Small scores and tied scores this season in the meetings of the country's more powerful teams—more powerful because of the greater amount of material on which to draw at the larger universities—have been quite frequent. It may be taken from such results that the coaches are making better progress in teaching their charges how to meet deceptive plays and freak plays that have been made possible by changes in the rules.

The defense against the forward pass was better in the east this season than ever before. There were games, however, which were won by use of the pass. But far and wide it was not such an easy thing to get away with a pass, and the old helter-skelter theory of passing in every direction under stress did not prevail as it did in other years.

In almost all games the theory of trying to get through tackle predominated in attempted gains through the line. Where the backs were very fleet and running was on the bill of tactics which the coach submitted to his men the defense against end running was more alert than usual and it took an exceptionally good man to make a gain by that route.

There was greater success in slipping by the tackles this year because most of the plays to which the teams resorted had for their foundation the taking out of an opposing end and the tackle next to him by the use of three players.

Now and then an assault was directed through center, and sometimes these gained ground. It was the better and heavier elevens that succeeded with this play. Where many of them failed, was in the fact that they had no deception about them.

No great punters came to light this year, though there were occasional good ones. The best distance punter was Hazel of Rutgers, who also kicked accurately in other ways. A six-yard punt by Hazel was nothing out of the ordinary.

BOXING NOTES

AT PHILADELPHIA—K. O. George Chaney Baltimore, knocked out Ray Mitchell, Philadelphia, fifth round. Ted Moore, England, stopped Andy (Kid) Palmer, Oklahoma, seven rounds. Roche Rogers, Philadelphia, stopped Pete Husic, Harrisburg, second round.

BEES MAKE HIVE OF SHIP'S BOOM

Unusual Occurrance Told By Vessel Reporting Weather Conditions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—As an example of unusual occurrences that find their way into routine government report may be cited a recent paragraph received from a ship which sends weather observations at regular intervals to the Federal weather bureau.

This ship, the American steamship West Nomentum, en route from Yokohama to Portland, Ore., was anchored off Davao, Mindanao, P. I., about half a mile from shore, last summer. Capt. L. Oetting, who was on the bridge winding the ship's chronometers, suddenly observed countless dark objects circling around the chart room. Investigation showed the visitors were bees.

Some minutes later they located themselves on the top end of one of the ship's booms in front of the bridge. They remained on this boom until late the same afternoon. This is the first case known to Captain Oetting of bees swarming on any part of a deep water vessel.

Correspondence Course On Bucking Bronchos

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Correspondence school lessons in riding are now available to officers and men of the U. S. cavalry, according to the annual report of Major-General W. A. Holbrook, chief of cavalry, to the war department.

General Holbrook reports that teaching men to ride bucking broncos and other fine points of the gentle art of doing gymnastics on the back of a horse has been given close attention during the year and that as a result of the "learn to ride by mail" courses success has come to 533 reserve officers, 65 enlisted men of the National Guard, 18 enlisted men of the reserves and 18 civilians. The cavalry correspondence school yell is: "Let 'er buck!"

ABATEMENT OF TAX

FISH TRADING AT L. A. HARBOR BIG

Records For Handling Finny Tribe Established Off San Pedro Coast

By CAL FISHER
For Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—Los Angeles is the biggest fish canning port in the United States! It is the biggest fish distributing port on the Pacific and only exceeded on the Atlantic coast by Boston, which is the fresh fish market for New England.

Such statements as those do not emanate from the Chamber of Commerce, reliable as that agency is in reporting the growth of the southland's industries, but they come from C. S. Bauder, deputy in charge of Los Angeles' harbor fishing activities for the California Fish and Game commission.

Mr. Bauder has just prepared graphs showing the magnitude of the fishing industry here which is rivalled only by Monterey county in this state and Seattle, Washington. However, neither come close to Los Angeles for 80 per cent of the fisheries yield is absorbed by canneries which line Terminal island, San Pedro, as well as other available sites in the harbor district.

Harvest of Sea

Los Angeles harbor gets 43 per cent of the harvest from the sea, as Mr. Bauder picturesquely puts the situation of all California centers. Altogether in a year's time more than 110,000,000 pounds of fish are landed here which finds its way to market in little tin cans principally, although the entire southwest eats a good sized chunk of fish each year, according to his figures. A small amount of the fish catch is made into meal for fertilizer.

Over 60 per cent of the catch made by great fleets of fishing smacks, accompanied by power tenders, is sardines. Tuna, albacore, skipjack and barracuda are next in quantity, according to Mr. Bauder's graphs.

Surprising as it may seem, the Philippine islands consumes the greatest amount of the fish pack, but the whole world is a market. The casual visitor at the harbor doesn't recognize the fish canning industry as colossal, yet each year it brings returns of $10,000,000, Mr. Bauder states.

Gifts for Buyers at Glendale Nursery

Offering several special values and giving a shrub free with $1 purchases, the Glendale Nursery will open tomorrow at 1258 South Brand boulevard, under the management of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Singer. Mr. and Mrs. Singer have been Glendale residents four years and Mrs. Singer has made an intensive study of horticulture and nursery growing having been connected with an uncle's nursery in Indianapolis for a number of years.

The nursery grounds have been very attractively laid out and one of the features will be a stock of rose bushes. Roses are not in season at this time of the year, but Mrs. Singer was able to get a small supply. With each $1 purchase tomorrow, the first 100 customers will be presented with a golden privet plant. The golden privet is one of California's most beautiful hedge plants and also is used extensively for ornamental purposes.

In the budded rose stock, Lady Hillington and Mammon Cochet in pink and white will be prominently displayed. Another opening day special will be the Coprosma varnish plant. Scotch heather, something not usually carried by nurseries, will be stocked. This will come from the gardens of J. W. Jannock of Pasadena, who spent years experimenting with heather and is credited with having spent seventeen years in the propagation of the rose tree, first introducing it to the United States. All kinds of bulbs, shrubs, fruit and ornamental trees and plants will be carried by the new nursery.

James Doesn't Believe In Fuss Over Wedding

ROME, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Getting married is just like lots of other things; there's no use getting excited about it, according to James McMillen.

James was married to Mamie Fowler of West Rome; but he didn't go home to change his overalls for his dress suit. He just "knocked off" work long enough to go to the city clerk's office to get the license and then step across the hall to the office of City Judge T. J. McNamara for the ceremony.

Panama Canal Route Is Proving Popular

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—The Panama canal route is becoming so popular for passenger traffic that the Transmarine corporation plans to increase its present intercoastal fleet from twelve to fourteen vessels and put into effect a schedule of regular weekly sailings.

LIGHTWEIGHTS DEFEAT HUNTINGTON PARK 10 TO 7

UPSET STATE CHAMPIONS; COLTON HERE TOMORROW

Place Kick from 35-Yard Line by Lovell in Second Period Wins Hard Fought Game; Regulars to Meet Eastern Team

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 the Glendale Dynamiters will meet the Colton heavies on Broadway field in one of the elimination contests of the Southern California play-off. Besides tomorrow's game here Van Nuys journeys to Santa Maria.

As the result of these four contests the play-off will have narrowed down to four teams in the semi-final round.

If both Glendale and Van Nuys remain unbeaten the two will settle their grudges to decide the Southern California championship.

The Colton outfit which plays here tomorrow is an exceptionally strong eleven and will give the locals a real fight. Colton eliminated Corona in the play-off, 31 to 13.

Coach Hayhurst's lads are in prime condition for the game and if the locals lose there will be no alibi to offer. Glendale's line-up for the Colton game will probably be much the same as that for the Van Nuys game. Carl Denney will be seen at full, Elmer Muff and Captain Dick Ryan at halves and Bud Elliott at quarter. De Parcq and Les Lavelle will take care of the wing positions, with Droopy Phillips and Lewis Dotson at tackles, Greene or Fannon at right tackle and Morrison at left tackle. Cecil Zaun will play center. Carl Denney will probably do most of the booting for the locals, while Elmer Muff will play safety.

Other Results

In the second round of the A playoff, Pomona and Compton battled to a 13-13 tie yesterday at Pomona. It is presumed this game will have to be replayed, inasmuch as the winner is to meet the winner of the Van Nuys-Santa Maria struggle at Santa Maria tomorrow.

In the second round of the class B playoff, Pasadena eliminated Anaheim. The game was played at Pasadena and ended with a score of 68 to 0 in favor of the Crown City lads. Last week Pasadena humbled Burbank 75 to 0 at Pasadena. Glendale and Pasadena will meet next week for the Southern California title.

After their opponents had taken the lead in the first few minutes of play the Glendale Dynamiter lightweights staged a comeback and defeated Huntington Park, three times state champions. They shoved over a touchdown and a field goal, enough to win the game, 10 to 7. The turkey day game was played on Broadway field before a huge crowd, estimated to be over 5000, and was the semi-final round of the Southern California lightweight playoff.

The Huntington Park lads got off with a substantial lead early in the game when they got the ball after Lovell failed in his first attempt for a field goal, and marched down the field, using bucks, runs and passes. Chambers got off for a sixty-yard run, and went across the goal line on a wide end run. Adams added the extra point.

The Dynamiters fought hard but could not penetrate their opponents' territory and Lovell tried several place kicks, most of which were from the thirty-five and forty-yard marks, without any success.

Score Is Tied

In the second period the Dynamiters went down the field to the visitors' four-yard mark, where they pushed the ball over on four plays, Harris carrying the ball on the final attempt. Lovell knotted the count with a nice place-kick.

Not long after the Glendale touchdown Lovell finished the game for the locals with a field goal from the thirty-five-yard line.

The Huntington Park outfit more than once threatened the Glendale goal during the last half. Their aerial attack was strong enough to take them down the field but always failed at critical moments. Harris saved the day for Glendale by knocking down a Huntington Park pass on the Glendale five-yard line. With only two minutes to play the visitors staged one last try but their castles were ruined when the locals intercepted a pass on the Red and Black thirty-yard line.

Archie Neel at center, Johnny Lovell at full, and Harris at half played wonderful games for the Dynamiters, while Martin was the outstanding individual star for the Bay league champs. The Glendale line was also showing up well on the defensive.

Coaches Hicks and Butterfield of the locals are confident that with this victory tucked away they will be able to jockey the locals into a state championship. Butterfield signified yesterday's game was the crucial and deciding battle of the lightweights' 1924 season.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Great track, scenery enough for Alpine climber, lots of ozone and usual amount of California sunshine, but we inquire what dump pile was rummaged for some of alleged racing skeletons that tried to exceed the speed limit?

Looks like Stanford and the Irishmen for New Year's. How Knute Rockne is going to keep that tribe of his in training until 1925 comes around is mystery. In or out our sheckels go on 'em to win battle.

FLASH—South African Solomon has 84 wives and 124 children and says he's just beginning to realize what a family's all about.

By time Pasadena settles on warriors to usher in New Year, all alibis for last Saturday's game at Berkeley will be in. Alibis so far have Andy Smith whipping Pop Warner by 87 touchdowns next year. Official scorer at Berkeley Saturday still insists score was tied.

At Doyle's Vernon stadium Tuesday night there were seven "sailors" pitted in the seven battles scheduled. Looks like "Kid" and "K. O." and "Young" were being discarded as handles for the boys slapping each other around the canvas.

Joe Benjamin still insists Benny Leonard should come to Hollywood and show him up Washington's birthday. Teddy Hayes, who trains Jack Dempsey when he isn't trying to vamp Benny West to muss Joe up, can't understand Benny's refusing. Benny is one of these wise Jewish boys whose bankroll permits his giving lots of thought to such matters.

Nick Nerman, a likely looking light-heavy, dropped into the office the other day and told us he slapped Pat Lester all over Oakland last summer. That doesn't make Nick a fighter if one has been unfortunate enough to see Pat try to slap some-one else. Nick hails from Kansas City and has stopped lots of the boys who thought they were headed for Dempsey's title.

WRITERS SELECT ALL-COAST TEAM

Trojans Given One Position With Bears Figuring In Four Berths

Pretty ticklish job—picking an All-Coast eleven for the season just passed—but, according to Gus Scherck, Seattle sports writer, and Copeland C. Burg, International News staff correspondent in Los Angeles, there is such a selection possible. Here goes:

ALL-COAST ELEVEN

R.E.—Mautz Oregon.
R.T.—N. Anderson, U. S. C.
R.G.—Nishwander, U. C.
C.—Horrell, U. C.
L.G.—Swan, Stanford.
L.T.—Kuhn, Washington.
Q.—Stivers, Idaho.
R.H.—Kelly, Montana.
F.—Young, U. C.

U. S. C. is favored with one position, left tackle, going to Norman Anderson. It is to be seriously doubted if this selection will be contested by any sports writer hereabouts. Anderson showed up in fine form at the tackle position, and stands out as the one big star of the Trojan aggregation.

Bears Honored

The Bears are given four positions—Horrel at center, Nishwander at right guard, Mell at left end and Young at fullback. Again the Pacific coast boys who pretend to know something about what an All-Coast eleven is all about use pretty good judgment in giving this quartette positions. These boys showed to advantage in every contest and, although there are some who will contest these selections, it is to be doubted if there are any four outher huskies who could take these positions and do as well.

Oregon steps in for one position, Mautz for right end. The Cardinals are given only one position, Swan at left guard. Washington sees Kuhn picked for left tackle and the general's position is given to Idaho with its Stivers. Kelly from Montana gets the right half position.

This man Kelly from Montana's huskies is in reality a quarter moved to half. Kelly has shown the stuff good backfield material is made of and his work against Stanford stamped him an outside selection for the All-Coast bunch.

Expect Large Crowd For Second Race Day

TIA JUANA, Mexico, Nov. 28.—Another crowd, probably not as large as the one of 20,000 which attended the eighth annual opening yesterday, was expected back here today for the second day's program of seven races at the Tia Juana race track.

It was revealed today that Runstar, owned by Mrs. A. B. Spreckels, and who was figured to win the Inaugural handicap yesterday by an easy margin, but who was last among the "also rans," finished the race in a lame condition. This was given as an excuse for his defeat, although the victory of Sunnyland, owned and entered by George P. Fuller of San Francisco, was regarded as a triumph for the local field.

FRENCH FELT HATS

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The only persons who do not like the newest little French felt hats in moorish colors are the men who have sat next to them on recent rainy days. One man described the hat as having the cornice and rain spout over the right shoulder. That is where the little narrow brim dips to a point. A simple band and tassel form the only trimmings.

In the United States 87,600 persons are killed accidentally every year.

Referendum on Taxes Oceanside Exercises

OCEANSIDE, Nov. 28.—By a vote of 401 to 114 voters here today had ratified a referendum against an occupational tax which had been passed by the city trustees.

ANDY SMITH SEES PENN IN ACTION

Bear Coach None Too Sure Of Victory In New Year's East-West Battle

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Five of the nine visiting coaches who saw an unbeaten team of the East, Pennsylvania, finish its regulation season with a decision over Cornell, united today in rendering unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to Penn the things that are Penn's. They were Alonzo Stagg, eminent coach of the Chicago champion of the Big ten; Bill Roper, of Princeton; Andy Smith, of California; Gil Dobie, of Cornell, and Bob Fisher, of Harvard.

All whispered sweet nothings in comment of the Red and Blue, Dobie even going so far as to say that the team was greater than Dartmouth, which, with Yale and Pennsylvania, completes the championship trinity of eastern football. Smith, whose California Bear will dally with Penn on New Year's day, professed to fear the worst for his young men when the occasion in question develops. Stagg was pleased to proclaim that Pennsylvania had a "truly marvelous" team.

Perfect Defense

"Its defense is almost perfect," the venerated Chicago coach declared. "The aerial attack is well executed and its running plays are very good. It seems to me that the East has at least one representative champion in Pennsylvania. I haven't seen Yale or Dartmouth."

Andy Smith, who was standing nearby with Fisher and Roper, added his lyric tenor to the chorus. Shooting from the hip, he said: "I'm glad I took the trouble to come east and scout Pennsylvania. I saw plenty to take back with me and think about. Penn played very smart football, the kind that wins football games. Ground gained means nothing if a team cannot take advantage of the breaks. Penn did this at all times. It is the kind of team that is never beaten, and I, for one, feel none too confident of the issue on New Year's day."

Missouri Corn Crop Take Tumble In 1924

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—The Missouri corn crop averaged 26.5 bushels on 6,759,000 acres, according to recent survey giving a yield of 179,113,000 bushels. The yield last year was thirty bushels. The present average is the lowest since 1918.

In Vienna in 1898 the police would hold up the traffic at any time to let Mark Twain pass.

America's imports of peanuts during 1923 showed a great increase over 1922.

LOCKHART WINNER AT ASCOT TRACK

Youthful Driver Covers 250 Miles With No Stops; Baker Is Second

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—That youth must be served was demonstrated at the Ascot track here yesterday when Frank Lockhart, 22 years old, who drove in his first race eight months ago, won the 250-mile road race revival over the Ascot goldcup course. His time was three hours, twenty-one minutes, forty seconds. Cannonball Baker, veteran race driver, was second. A tire change, which took only forty-five seconds, at the end of 150 miles, spelled defeat for Baker, as he was leading the field up to the time of his mishap.

Lockhart drove the entire distance without a visit to the pits. At the end of 225 miles he slowed down to allow his mechanic, Ernie Stone, to vault from the car. Lockhart drove a Duesenberg car. Baker's mount was a Jewett.

Other winners were: C. A. Chamberlain, Chrysler, third; Ted Simpson, Stutz, fourth; Al Menasco, Buick, fifth; Ed Dameier, Hudson, sixth; Jack Thiele, Thiele Special, seventh; J. F. Jones, Oakland, eighth; Cliff Bergere, Duesenberg, ninth; and Ed Newton, Hudson, tenth. Forty-three cars entered the race. There were no serious accidents to mar the race, which was witnessed by more than 40,000 persons.

HEADS CORNHUSKERS

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 28.—Elbert Bloodgood of Beatrice, Neb., quarterback on the Corn Huskers' squad this year, will lead the Nebraska team as captain in 1925. Bloodgood was elected by his team mates following the Thanksgiving day victory of the Corn Huskers over the Oregon Aggies, 14 to 0. The Nebraska team of 1925 will be a veteran eleven with the exception of only Collins and Robertson, varsity ends, who will be lost by graduation.

One person is killed accidentally every six minutes.

TO-NIGHT'S CARD

Johnny Adams will endeavor to regain his Pacific coast lightweight title from Tommy Carter tonight at the American Legion stadium in Hollywood. Carter won the crown from Adams about a month ago. Mike Dempsey and Racehorse Roberts will stage the semi-windup. K. D. Kelly meets Young Papke in the special spot. Other bouts will be: Billy Hart and Joe Oaks, Tommy Richards and Tommy Reyborne, Young Johnny Adams and Jack Lewis, and Eddie Spurley and Chang Monroe.

COCKTAIL NAPKINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—In preparing customers' lists did you ever think of cocktail napkins? Of course, few people who indulge will refuse cocktail because it is unaccompanied by a napkin. They are zippy gifs, nevertheless. A design of pink elephants on synthetic linen might be appropriate.

COLLEGE GETS GIFTS

POMONA, Nov. 28.—Half a million dollars was pledged by the town of Claremont and the student body in the five-day rally opening the campaign for $3,000,000 for Pomona college, it was reported at the final workers' dinner last night. Ninety per cent of the students have pledged, contributing a total of $42,697, and almost as good a percentage of all the townspeople have participated. Gifts varied from the pledge of a day's work without compensation to a gift of $250,000 by Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Crookshank. The promises of labor totaled six months of work. Five acres of land was given for a huge storage tank for the college water supply, and funds for the men's gymnasium and development of the new thirty-acre athletic field were started by grammar school boys.

JAMES CRUZE RESTING

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—It has stopped snowing at the Paramount studio, and James Cruze has gone home to rest a while in his estate at La Canada. Which is merely another way of saying that Cruze has completed production of "The Goose Hangs High," a tender story of Christmas time and the home-coming of a family. During the entire space of production it never stopped snowing in the vicinity of Cruze's set. Featured players in the production include Constance Bennett, Myrtle Stedman, Lester Ralston, George Irving and Edward Peil, Jr.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

There are many who have not enjoyed the privilege of visiting the Glendale Sanitraium and Hospital in the hills overlooking Glendale. Health seekers, principally, are the guests, yet the dining hall is a place where the resident has easy access to well prepared viands.

This writer was recently impressed by two things at the sanitarium. It is magnificently situated and possesses a plant second to none. And it displays a spirit of service, divinely endowed, which so many institutions lack.

You will be pleased to visit the Glendale sanitarium and know more about it; it resembles a great hotel in many respects; it is a sanctum for those who would enjoy a clean life and wholesome foods.

Advertising the city of Glendale to strangers the Glendale Sanitarium is an example of what a tourist hotel means to this city. People of high social standing and wealth, among others, are attracted here. And once they see Glendale they are won by its ideal location and friendly people.

One cannot but help suggest a trip over the trail of Mount Verdugo to get a perspective of this rapidly developing vale. The many new homes, to say nothing of expanding business district, public buildings and new highways, pass in review as one motors around this city.

Look down upon Glendale from the mountain top and a revelation presents itself. Also, there comes a vision of the future. You should accord yourself the privilege of really "seeing Glendale."

With another victory yesterday the Glendale Union High school football teams are going to bring honor and credit to this city which the public should not overlook. One winning team is something to brag about, but when all three varsity squads develop a winning streak it is time for the home folks to read the sport pages with avidity. Also, all who possibly can get out to the coming games should lend their support to these boys who have distinguished themthemselves on the gridiron.

WOMAN'S CHANCE FOR STATE HEAD

Public Officials on Reasons For, Against Female Becoming Governor

SACRAMTNTO, Nov. 28.—Can a woman be elected governor of California?

State officials are far apart as the poles on the subject. Some few hold that women are incapable of exercising the judicial and executive balance which they claim is an indispensable requirement for that exalted position. Others say the election of a woman governor would be a "God-send."

Governor Richardson alone takes refuge in invulnerable silence. However, since he appointed Mrs. Nellie Brewer Pierce to the most important post in his administration—that of financial adviser—it is presumed he has a high opinion of woman's ability, even though Mrs. Pierce did resign after preparing one budget.

State Controller Ray L. Riley said: "Whether a woman can be elected governor of California depends solely on the individual. I do not think sex enters into it. I do not hold the view that a woman as governor would be swayed by sentiment to the exclusion of hard sense. The opposite has been demonstrated by their service on juries."

Decidedly Against

W. G. McMillan, state purchasing agent, has fixed opinions. "I am unalterably opposed to a woman running for governor," he said. "I don't think she would get to first base. There are just a few things the male has been able to preserve as his own. Why take one more privilege, the right to govern, away from man? The average woman is swayed by sentiment in pardon cases and other matters. My advice to the woman is 'Stay at home and take care of your children'."

According to State Treasurer C. G. Johnson, women, "since their enfranchisement, have exercised powerful influence for progressive standards of government and have fortified the electorate in its selection of competent public servants. I am of the opinion that if a woman developed as a leader and was able to present a constructive platform she would have the confidence of the men as well as of the women. No sex has any mortgage on ability. The franchise establishes equality. I must admit, however, that campaigning in California is somewhat of a man's job."

L. E. Ross, chief of the state bureau of vital statistics, believes there is small chance of a woman governor presiding in the capitol. "The sex handicap," he says, "would be felt in making the race for the nomination.

Woman Championed

"The right woman as governor would be a Godsend. She would do much to clean up politics. The cry for economy can only be met by efficiency. There is no efficiency in government based on political patronage and the spoils system. Efficiency can only be had through divorcing government jobs from politics. Those who carry out the program—the workers—should be qualified by and hold their positions under a non-political civil service. A woman governor with a sincere desire for economy would do much to bring this about."

Frank C. Jordan, secretary of state is a strong advocate of women as officeholders, even to the governorship.

"There are women in California," said Jordan, "who would make as good governors as some of the men we have had in office. The voters of Texas and Wyoming have gone on record for women and it will be interesting to watch their work. Women in California have done good, particularly in the late election, in getting voters to the polls and their influence has been for good."

Frank J. Smith, state printer, who will become warden of San Quentin prison January 1, says he knows "some women who would make better governors than some of the male birds who now are preening themselves for the gubernatorial flight."

Smith, who is the lone bachelor among important state officials, admits his disqualification in judging on equal terms with married men.

Bachelor Speaks

"It is a difficult subject for a bachelor to tackle," he mused. "Woman's emotional ecstasy would naturally militate against the poise and mental balance so essential in a chief executive. On the other hand, many states have had governors who would have achieved greater success had they turned their attention to domestic science and left the reins of government in the hands of their more efficient wives.

"The modern woman has more stamina than the average man," declares the bachelor official. "She must be reckoned with in politics as well as in the house," he says.

"Men who achieve success usually do so because of the good influence some intelligent woman has over them. If a woman can vitalize and inspire a man with good ideals, why cannot she also execute them herself?" was his parting question.

SEEKS SPECIAL SESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A special session of Congress after March 4 to consider agricultural legislation was suggested to President Coolidge this afternoon by Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

A hundred life insurance claims for $100,000 or more were paid in 1922.

Radicals Barred From G.O.P. Senate Councils

of the conference that Senators La Follette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier be not invited to future Republican conferences and be not named to fill any Republican vacancies on senate committees."

The resolution was adopted without a record vote. Senator Ladd was the only one of the insurgent quartet present when the action was taken. He sat in silence while his Republican colleagues denounced the insurgent group. But the action of the conference provoked Senator Ladd to break his silence immediately after he left it.

Ladd Is Defiant

He declared his senatorial conduct will not be changed by the action of his confreres, that he will continue his independence in legislative matters, and that he is "answerable only to the people of North Dakota" for his actions.

The reprimand was launched by Senator Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, who sponsored the resolution adopted. A number of other similar resolutions were also presented but the Reed resolution was adopted by a viva voce vote.

There were many absentees besides La Follette, Brookhart and Frazier. These included such known independents as Senator Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Norbeck of South Dakota and Norris of Nebraska. Their absence was taken to indicate that they did not agree with the action of the conference.

Curtis Floor Leader

In the election of Senator Curtis as the new floor leader, the conference was unanimous. His name was proposed by Senator Capper, his colleague, and seconded by Senator Elkins of West Virginia.

After his election Curtis asked the conference to elect an assistant leader and to permit him to name his own whip. The conference agreed.

The name of Senator Watson was the only one presented for the assistant leadership. He was proposed by Senator Ernst of Kentucky and the nomination seconded by Senator Gooding of Idaho. His election was also unanimously adopted.

Prior to Curtis' election, Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, to whom the post was due under the seniority rule, announced he would not be a candidate.

Program Undecided

No attempt was made to discuss a legislative program.

The Republican rebuke to the insurgents was later characterized as "a piece of vaudeville," by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who almost invariably has voted with the insurgents but who was not mentioned in the resolution of censure.

By their action, Norris said, the Republican senators have also read out of the party such outstanding figures as Chief Justice William Howard Taft, Secretary of State Hughes, the late Theodore Roosevelt and "a million others" who have on occasions refused to support the party nominees.

Athletic Break Will Be Mended, Consider Plan

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—A plan for the solution of the present athletic difficulties between the University of California, Stanford university and the University of Southern California has been reached by the federal and state affairs committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Sylvester L. Weaver, chairman of the committee, stated today.

"The committee feels that the state, as a whole, will be benefited by the reaching of an understanding between the three universities," Mr. Weaver said, "and we believe that we have formulated a plan which will adjust matters to the entire satisfaction of all concerned."

Final drafting of this plan was scheduled to be made today at a meeting of the committee, and then will be presented to the board of directors of the chamber for consideration December 4, before the details will be made public, according to Mr. Weaver.

VOTERS BACK UP U.S. CONSTITUTION

Revival Of Interest Shown In Study of Document Declares Speaker

Dr. George R. Rice of the Better American Federation of California, told Glendale Optimists at their noon meeting today that the result of the national election on November 4 showed clearly the stand of the American nation on the constitution when 96 per cent of the votes were cast for the upholding of that document. He told of the movemene throughout the country during the past three years for a better understanding of the constitution among the people.

Dr. Rice declared that America was founded by those seeking religious liberty and that when the founders attained this freedom here, there was begotten the spirit of loyalty which with the spirit of liberty makes up the great moving "spirit of America." The constitution, embodying the great spirit of America is the greatest safeguard ever thrown about a nation, he said. The men who drew it up were the wisest the nation has ever produced and their work has ever won the admiration and praise of the whole world, the speaker declared.

Earl Houck Sings

Dr. Rice denounced the idea that America has outgrown the constitution, declaring that the four dominating ideals, of home, of school, of religion and of state embodied in the document can never be outgrown.

Earl C. Houck of Eagle Rock rendered several baritone solos at the meeting. He was accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Dean also of Eagle Rock. The meeting was in charge of Leo E. Oleson, assistant manager of the Brand boulevard branch, Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank.

A number of the Glendale Optimists will accompany the Pasadena Optimist club to San Diego tomorrow afternoon to put on a special entertainment at a banquet in the southern city tomorrow night. George Postle will have charge of next week's meeting. Dr. H. R. Boyer, presided.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Steel and motor stocks kept Wall Street pots boiling today and throughout another active session it boiled as furiously as at any time since the post-election movement started on November 5. The market was not without its reactionary trend, which was seen principally in the heavy liquidation of railroad stocks and specialties which "have had their rise" and offered much less by way of spectacular price movements, either to the professional traders or the outside public.

The advance in call money rates to 3 and then to 3½ per cent, due to the month end preparations for December 1 requirements, was without particular effect in the stock market, though trading slowed down somewhat in the fourth hour. Considerable irregularity was seen in the market for speculative railroad bonds, particularly the St. Paul and New Haven nearby maturities.

Steel stocks led the way to higher price levels at the opening and an enormous volume of buying orders in the first hour found a comparatively small amount of floating stock in the market and prices consequently pushed forward rather briskly. U. S. Steel, at 118 ex-dividend, $1.75, was up 1½ points, repeating its almost daily performance of establishing a new high record price since 1917. The independent steel stocks continued the sharp upward movement which was in progress at the close Wednesday.

The next group to step in the limelight was the motors and stocks of closely allied industries like the tire and rubber companies, motor accessories, manufacturers, and the like. Studebaker took the lead and sold at a new high for the year at 43½; Mack Truck was up about 3 points at 113; Maxwell up 1 point; Stromberg Carburetor up 3½ at 72½; U. S. Rubber up 3 at 41⅛.

Railroad stocks and specialties remained in the background throughout most of the session and oil stocks were again inactive and generally reactionary. Pan-American Petroleum B sold up nearly 2 points at 55¼ and Standard of California sold fractionally higher.

Copper, Metal and allied stocks joined the upwad movement late in the session. National Land gained about 3 points; Cerro De Pasco and Kennecott Copper made good market records and international Nickel was in new high ground above 25.

Stock sales today totaled 2,422,200 shares; bonds, $16,092,000.

F. W. Ferris, Chemist, Is Found Murdered

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—A gruesome murder was revealed to the police today in the finding of the body of a man, with the throat cut, in a blood spattered room of a vacant house near Lankershim.

After an inspection of a book and papers found in the pockets of the dead man's clothing, the police declared they believed the victim was Fred W. Ferris, a prominent chemist specializing in analysis of perfumery.

Near the body was a revolver, fully loaded, but the knife with which the man's throat had been cut was missing. In one corner of the room were fragments of a torn newspaper on which the slayer had apparently cleaned his hands of blood.

New England Storms Damage Telephones

Truthfulness May Get Presidential Pardon

unethical or evil in local politics. If ballots were stuffed or "honest" candidates counted out, it was always McDonough who was charged with it. If gambling or civic graft or anything sordid or sinful was suddenly uncovered, it was McDonough who received the blame.

In the heyday of his political power, however, he always was credited with one outstanding trait. His word, once given, was always a thing to be counted upon. He never evaded the truth. If ballot boxes were stuffed, McDonough might not admit it, but he would not seek refuge in a false denial. Even to his bitterest political enemies he bore the reputation of "a man who would not lie."

Ever since his arrest McDonough has contended his innocence of the bootlegging charge upon which he was convicted. The evidence against him was that, although a millionaire, he personally sold three gallons of whisky to three men who admitted in court they never saw him before.

The object of the alleged "frame-up," he contended, was to take away from him his lucrative bail bond business, which his political enemies are said to have coveted.

San Francisco has always taken McDonough's conviction with a grain of salt. It has refused to believe that a wily politician of the deposed boss' acumen would do anything so stupid. Like those who have signed the petition for his pardon, a large proportion of the population believes that there had been something in even political record for integrity and that as the ancient philosopher opines, "truth" in this case may be the "gate of justice."

Miss Mary Chester Sells 150 Foot Frontage at Low Figure, Report

Y. M. C. A. international building bureau of New York city, represented by R. L. Rayburn who spent several days in Glendale in conference with the board of directors, the building committee and the site committee, a clear parcel of ground 100x150 feet was selected for the building.

"However, feeling that it was wise at this time to secure additional space for expansion to meet the future needs of the boys and young men of this growing city, contract has been entered into for the purchase of a block of ground having a frontage of 150 feet on Louise street and a depth of 150 feet to a wide alley."

In New Quarters

Headquarters of the Y. M. C. A. here have been moved from 102 East Broadway to room 612 in the Security building, where three large offices are provided for the increased work as a result of the building campaign. The new telephone number is Glendale 2251.

Ordinance Passed Will Govern Barber Shops

dale that have openly told me they are in favor of this ordinance."

Jim Colson (a Glendale barber): "Why not include beauty parlors.

Dr. Kaemmerling: "The council is contemplating such an ordinance now, and Ray L. Morrow, city attorney, is drafting it. Barber shops are a little different. The sanitary precautions we are asking are necessary for the public health."

Mr. Morrow: "If the barbers would rather have a paid inspector make daily visits to their shops, we can cut out the part of this ordinance that requires physical examination—but we would have to raise their license fee, in order to pay the salary of such an inspector."

The opposition of the barbers collapsed at this point and the ordinance was passed.

The council voted to donate $150 to the oratorio section of the Glendale Music club, to help finance the production of "Messiah" on December 16. This vote was taken after Mrs. Frank Arnold and Mrs. Roberta T. Young had made the request in person.

Peter Diederich, superintendent of plant and production, was instructed to bring before the council, at its next session, recommendations for a one-globe type or ornamental street lighting standard. Councilman Gilhuly registered the only "no" vote on this measure, declaring: "I am dead against the city getting into the street standard business. It is the greatest mistake Glendale has ever made."

A communication from the Glendale citizens' traffic commission was read before the council. It commended the council for the action taken to provide safety zones for school children and urged that the matter of boulevard stops be again taken up. It was decided to discuss this matter at the next meeting.

Councilman Asa Hall introduced an ordinance regulating rooming houses within the city of Glendale and otherwise protecting the public morals. An ordinance was passed changing the name of Cambridge drive to Princeton drive. Amendments to ordinance No. 529, on zoning, were passed creating commercial districts at Pacific avenue and Burchett street, Glenoaks boulevard between Winchester avenue and Justin street, and creating an industrial district on East Wilson avenue near Sycamore canyon road.

Bids were opened for the improvement of Los Feliz road with ornamental street lights and were referred to the superintendent of plant and protection for checking and report. All protests were denied on the hearing of issuance of bonds for the improvement of Hiawatha drive, and a resolution was adopted ordering the issuance of the bonds.

Lottery in Harlem Favors Its Bankers

the correct balances $103,000,000, which made the winning lottery number 623.

The winner of the first prize was paid $6,000 and the 21 winners of the second prize took down about $19,000. If the bankers had paid off on the first number they would have had to settle with 32 persons for the big money. Their bets are said to have totaled $252. This sum at 600 to 1, the quoted odds, would have cost the bankers over $150,000. Moreover the bankers would have had to pay more than $100,000 to 65 winners of the second prize.

There have been rumors of a bribe fund of $1,500 raised last week among certain Harlem gamblers to assure the "fixing" of the figures but apparently it was not made clear even to the contributors how this was to be done.
